Many centuries ago a caveman saw something mysterious -- and he wondered. After wondering for long enough, he explained the phenomenon. While feeling satisfied with his discovery, he happened to notice something else "magical" and he wondered --

Man differs from animals in his ability to reason. This power combined with curiosity has enabled him to learn.

There have always been scientists and philosophers who have searched for complete wisdom and truth. They soon found that each new discovery brought with it new problems.

Instead of achieving his ultimate goal, man found that he was farther away than ever.

Often, the more one learns the more ignorant he considers himself as each new discovery awakens more doubts and questions in his mind. It seems that the search for knowledge can never be ended. But this endless search is necessary to keep man's spirit alive. Without it he would be no better than a vegetable.

In the future some of us will use the knowledge of yesterday and today as a basis for research. And perhaps one of us will see something mysterious, and wonder -- and after wondering for long enough explain the phenomenon. Maybe that person will be you!

In Memoriam

Ernest H. G. Worden M.C., B.A.

Weston Collegiate and Vocational School is one hundred and six years old. For almost a third of that time, Mr. Worden was a part of it - for twenty-two years, 1936-1958, the heart of it.

After a distinguished career with the Royal Berkshire Regiment in France and Salonika, Mr. Worden completed his degree in Honour Science at McMaster University--winning the Governor General's Medal--and taught at Beamsville and Windsor.

For the next ten years, 1926-1936, he not only taught science at Weston High, but became the first Vice-Principal, coached the senior rugby and hockey teams, encouraged the founding of the first Conning Tower and even whistled an accompaniment to the Mouth Organ Band--our only orchestra. On Mr. Pearson's retirement in 1936, Mr. Worden became Principal. He was fortunate in the year that he took over, for, since the depression was lifting, improvements could be made. Immediately he established a new office, sponsored Heads of Departments, and a Shop Director for the Vocational School, made plans for an addition that was desperately needed and had the status of the school upgraded, W.H.V.S. became W.C.V.S. With the new spirit of enterprise which better times evoked and which Mr. Worden made the most of, student activities increased: the Conning Tower and Field Day were revived and a Student Council inaugurated. By 1939 the school was ready for an outstanding contribution to World War II. And, in spite of war, and Atlantic Pact plans, and Korean War to frustrate building plans, the addition was completed in 1953. When Mr. Worden retired in 1958, our Centennial year, the school had grown from 900 to 1500 while he was Principal.

In those years too, Mr. Worden had been a good citizen beyond the school. After he retired, his services to the community were continued and enlarged. He became the Recording Secretary of the Official Board of the Central United Church; continued his work with the Rotary; added services to the Cancer Society; and from 1958 was on the Board of the Weston Library as chairman of the Property Committee and in 1963 of the Building Committee which sparked the Town Council to the major Renovation of the Library. In 1962 he was elected to the Weston Board of Education; there he was Vice-Chairman in 1962 and Chairman in 1963 as well as the Weston representative on the Metropolitan Board of Education.

Mr. Worden died January 23, 1964. He will be remembered as a fine teacher, an outstanding principal, an unselfish citizen and a true friend. The Humber Memorial Hospital, the extensive renovation of the Weston Library, and the William Street wing of the Weston Collegiate and Vocational School will remain tangible memorials to his foresight and will to work for others.

Miss Dora Wattle.

STUDENT COUNCIL

I welcome this opportunity to thank you, the students, for your support; it has been an honour to represent you as your president.

I extend to the editors and their assistants my congratulations for this excellent edition of the "Conning Tower"; it represents well the many phases of student life at Weston C.V.S.

Weston's students may be proud of the enviable records we have set this year; a student organized blood donor clinic collected 211 bottles, a record for the town; the United Appeal campaign raised $1,925, $675 over the previous year; and the Christmas Basket Drive gathered food and toys worth over $750. This year the Student Council has initiated a weekly column in the Weston Times-Advertiser; it has made school blazers and cardigans available to students. Our school dances have been quite successful and all other school activities and games have been generally well supported.

To those who will be leaving Weston and to those who remain I wish the best of luck in the years ahead.

John Henry.

Weston Board of Education

On behalf of the Weston Board of Education, I am most pleased to extend best wishes to each and every student at Weston Collegiate and Vocational School. I trust that your years in this school have been and will be most rewarding and that the knowledge and training which you receive here will substantially contribute to a successful and happy future for each of you.

In Appreciation

MR. G. H. BARR

The editors of the Conning Tower would like to express their appreciation to one of Weston's staff members who put so much time and effort in making former yearbooks possible. Mr. Barr's constant administrative guidance and unfailing attention to detail kept the Conning Tower running smoothly for many years.

Mr. Barr, whose hometown is Dorchester, Ontario, attended the University of Western Ontario and took a Bachelor of Arts in Honour English in schools at Collingwood and Woodstock. Six years ago he became a member of Weston's English department.

Our sincere thanks go out to Mr. Barr for all the time and hard work he gave to the yearbook. We would also like to wish him continued success and satisfaction in his new school.

Ann Constable, 12A

MR. L. A. SWATRIDGE

Mr. Swatridge's seemingly insuperable drive and energy were constant inspirations to the students during all his years at Weston. As a member of the Geography department, and later as its head, Mr. Swatridge was one of the school's most popular staff members. His contribution as staff adviser to the "features" section of the Conning Tower was inestimable. He was an endless fund of encouragement and unique, spirited ideas for such things as surveys and student exchanges.

Mr. Swatridge graduated from the University of Western Ontario with a Bachelor of Arts degree in Geography, after which he taught public school in his hometown of Stratford, and high school in Bowmanville. From there he came to Weston in 1957, and became the head of the Geography department two years later.

During these years he was also one of the chief sparks behind the creation of Friday Forum, another example of his boundless interest in his students.

The editors of the Conning Tower would like to express their deep and lasting appreciation to Mr. Swatridge for his interest and guidance, and to wish him even greater success at Emery Collegiate.

Ann Constable, 12A

Principals' Messages

It is a pleasure for me once again to say a few words of introduction for our school magazine, "The Conning Tower."

This year, Mr. Harvey, a new teacher of the Commercial department, is co-ordinating the efforts of the student executive, the staff assistants and the many pupil contributors in an effort to produce the best yearbook yet.

I would like to congratulate them on their splendid achievement in reflecting so well the many varied activities and organizations of our school.

To those pupils who will leave us this year, I wish to convey sincere wishes for a successful future. As for those still in the process of completing their education, may you press forward with persistent and conscientious effort toward your goal, cultivating as you go, a spirit of toleration, a consideration for others and a keen sense of judgment.

May I, in conclusion, express to the members of the staff and the whole student body, my sincere appreciation for the excellent spirit of cooperation and goodwill during the past year.

C. W. Christie.

With each edition of the Conning Tower there comes a real feeling of pride and accomplishment. This year's Conning Tower Staff can be justly proud of this excellent magazine.

The many phases of school life shown here range from enjoyable experiences to creative and productive activities.

All of this is wonderful to see for we are reminded that education can be both satisfying and challenging.

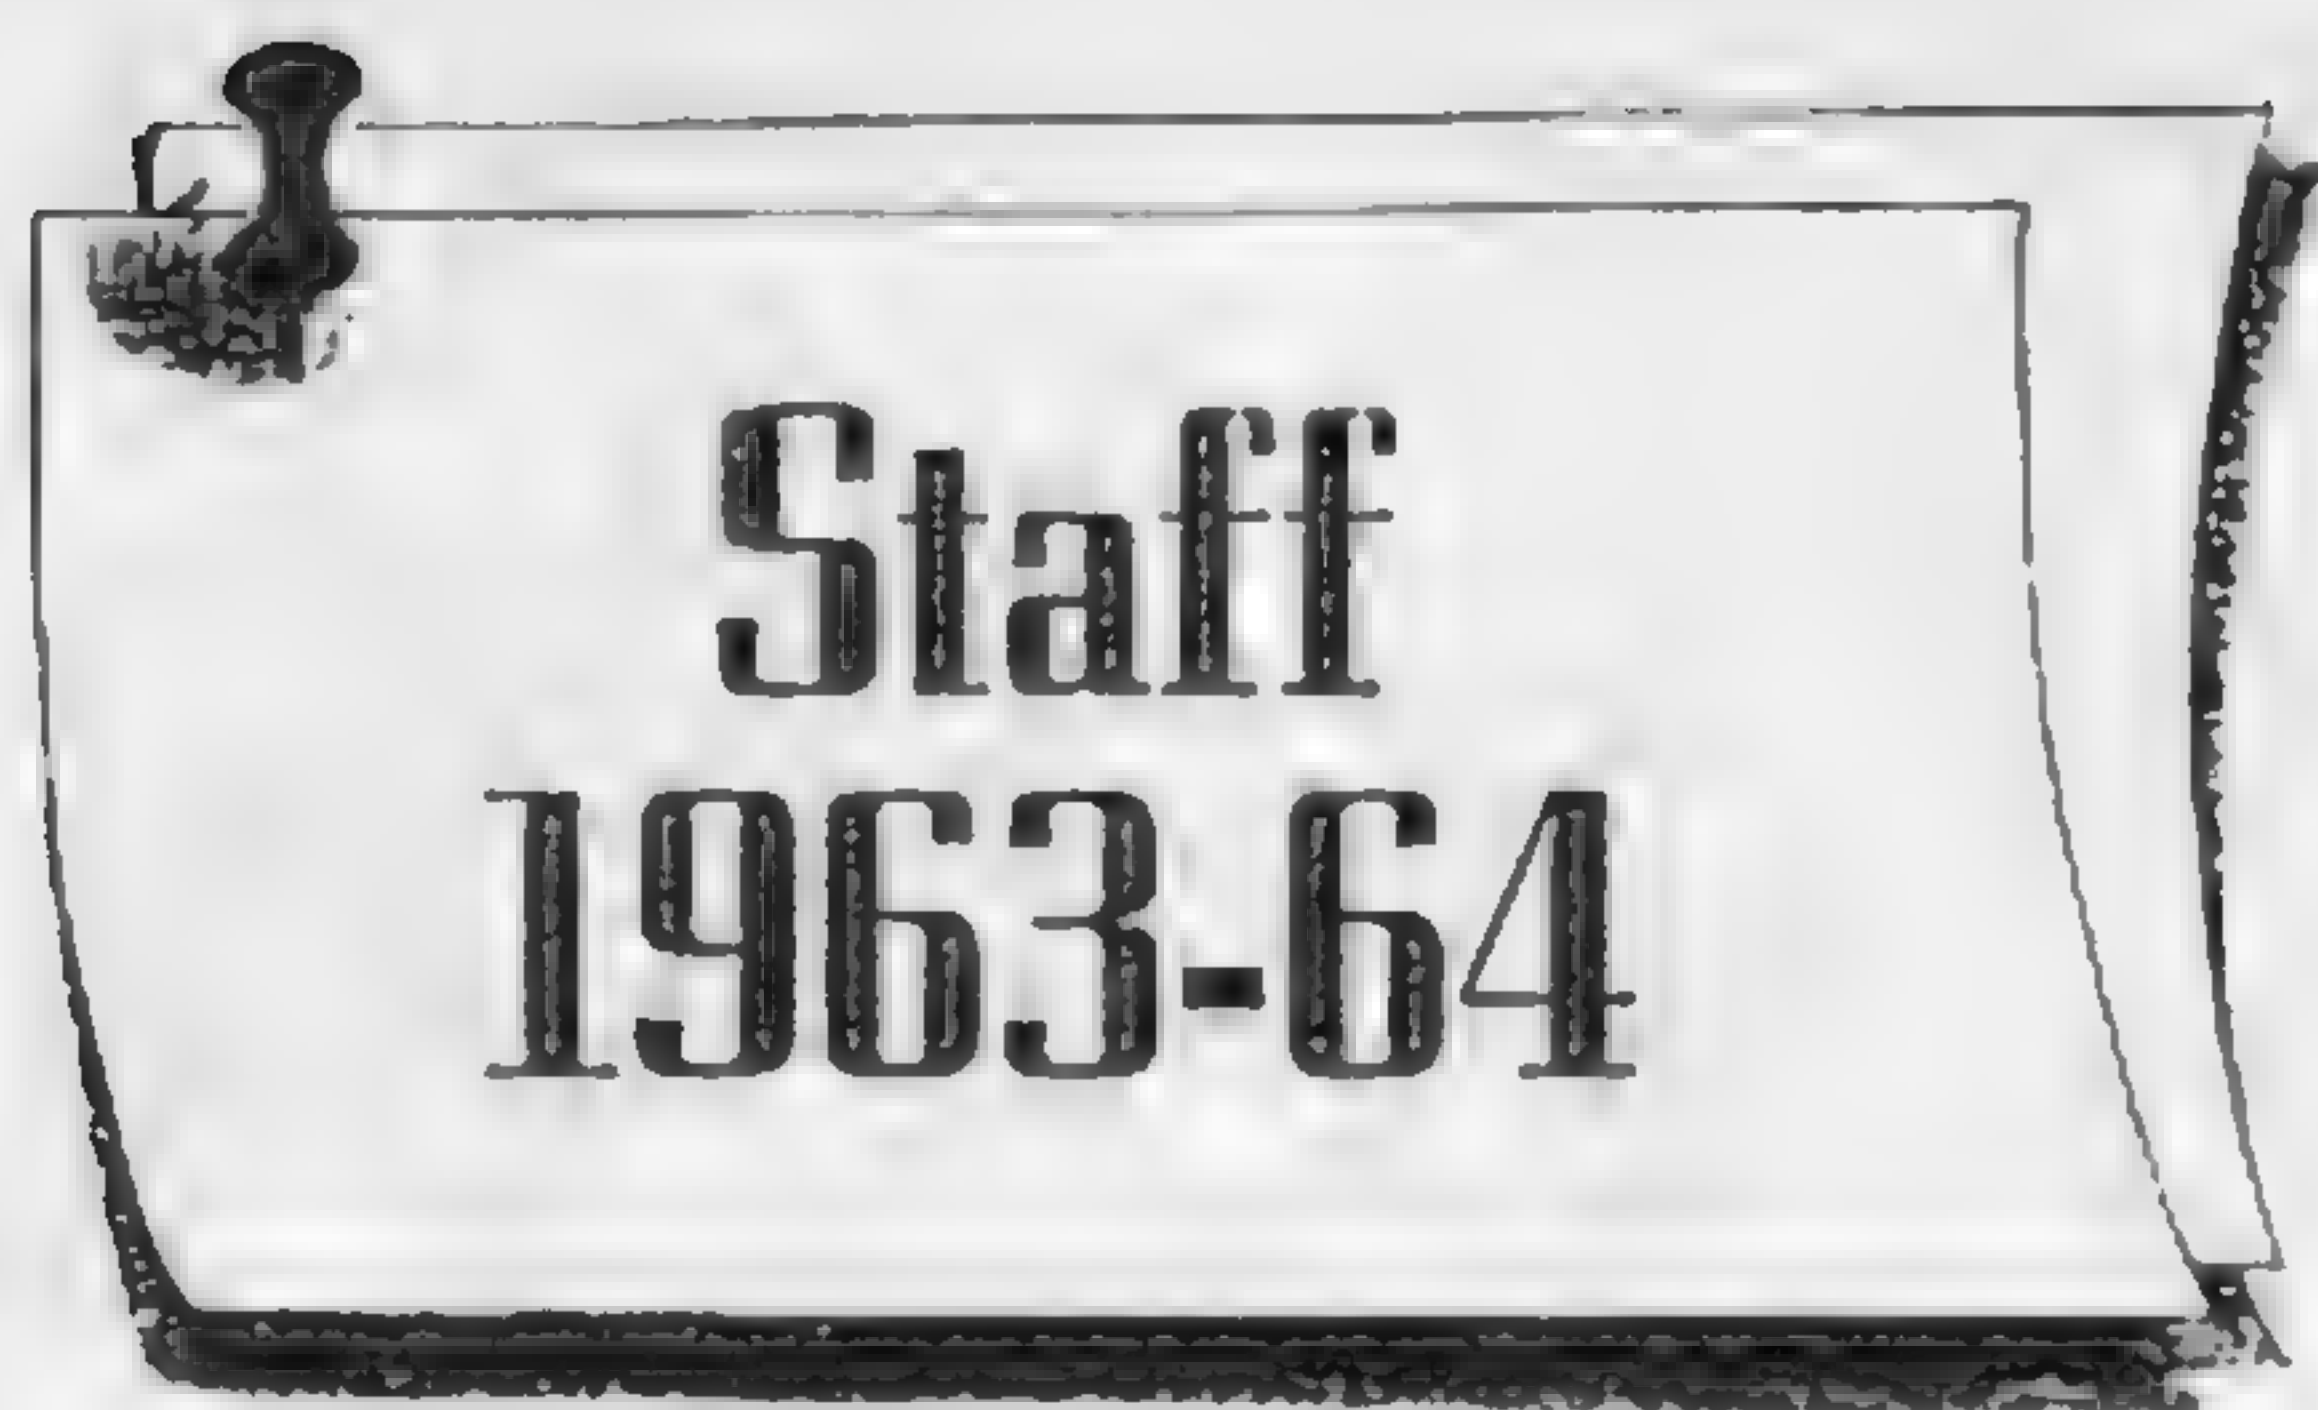

Education is more than a search for knowledge or a vocational preparation. There must be, also, the development and strengthening of character.

A person of good character does not try to evade his duties to society, nor does he allow himself to become negligent of them. He will not be unmindful of his obligation to maintain principles and standards in the performance of his daily tasks; but, he will recognize the imperative nature of duty. He will combine with it a sense of tolerance and gentleness toward others. He will be co-operative with his fellow-workers, and reliable.

Character is a code of values and something every student should aim to improve. Experience will make us more sure-footed, but we must take courage to venture out into the broad life of maturity and self-reliance.

MR. R. E. WHITING

For many years Mr. R. E. Whiting instructed students on the intricacies of science. After 27 years at W.C.V.S. he has retired.

Mr. Whiting was born in Toronto in 1908. He attended Jarvis Collegiate before studying mineralogy, geology and chemistry at the University of Toronto. With his B. A. and M.A., Mr. Whiting spent one year in chemical research and three years with the Geological Survey of Canada. A graduate of the Ontario Teachers' College, he taught night school at Niagara Falls before coming to Weston.

At Weston, Mr. Whiting, head of the science department, taught junior and senior chemistry and physics.

Mr. Whiting now enjoys his hobbies and pursues special projects. With his wife, he enjoys canoeing and camping. Reading and plant study, bee-keeping and experiments in maple syrup production on his seven acre woodlot near Barrie, are also hobbies of Mr. Whiting's.

We at W.C.V.S. are sincerely grateful for the years Mr. Whiting taught us. We wish him all the happiness and enjoyment in the years ahead as he has had in the years past.

Barry Jones, 12E.

MR. W. J. ELLISON

After 25 years of teaching at Weston Collegiate and Vocational School, Mr. W. J. Ellison has moved to a new position.

Mr. Ellison was born on November 28, 1909, in Port Stanley, Ontario. After obtaining his B.A. and M.A. at the University of Western Ontario, Mr. Ellison taught for one year at Preston High School and two years at Tillsonburg High School.

During his twenty-five years at Weston, Mr. Ellison was extremely active in school activities, so active that he was awarded the school "W" for his contributions. For 20 years his excellent violin playing, which he began when he was a young boy, was a notable highlight of the school orchestra. He was also Director of Drama for eighteen years. When he left at the end of the 1962-1963 school term, he had been head of the English department for years.

Now head of the department at West Elgin District High School in West Lorne, Ontario, Mr. Ellison is still very active. Besides his violin playing, he heads a choir, enjoys singing and pursues his hobby, gardening.

Although we are sorry and sad to see Mr. Ellison leave us, we wish him and his wife the best of luck and an abundance of happiness and success in their new home.

Valedictory

Mr. Christie, Honoured Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen. As is the case every year at this time, another group of Weston's scholars must bid farewell to teachers, friends, and of course W.C.V.S. itself. Although we will not physically attend classes here again, we will always be here emotionally, for I believe that every student leaves some part of himself or herself behind. In exchange we will always carry with us those memories so dear to all of us, memories gathered in the course of five bountiful years at Weston. Yes, they were the wonderful years, as is so often heard. Perhaps at this moment we do not fully share this view with those who have passed before but as the years go by I am sure that we will realize just how great they really were.

These years spent at Weston were not long years when one looks in retrospect, although I must admit at times they seemed all too long, in fact extremely long. A mere five years ago, a bolsterous, unruly collection of public school rejects sat where you are sitting tonight. Yes, ladies and gentlemen, that was us. This was a class that was destined to go places and waste no time in doing it. In fact it took a remarkably short time before we were unanimously voted the rowdiest freshman class ever to pass through the illustrious portals of W.C.V.S. Nevertheless, this indignity did not sit lightly on the shoulders of those who bore the mark. Throughout our years at Weston we strove to better this situation, this humiliation. Each year our standing rose again until just last year we were voted the rowdiest grade thirteen and the most unlikely to succeed.

Of course this was just another attempt by our teachers to stifle some of the exuberance which somehow was not quite entirely devoted to studies. However, we did have our serious moments and in these few brief pauses, those human beings with frayed nerves that they call teachers managed to cram what knowledge they could into our blank expressions. Here I have come to the point at which I must give credit where credit is due. There is nothing I can say about our teachers that has not been said before, but you must admire those stalwarts who can tolerate us. I sometimes wonder how they can do it. Undoubtedly it must be a love of the work fortified by a strong devotion to duty. Believe me when I say strong because all one had to do was attend one of our classes when the natives were restless so to speak in order to realize just how strong this devotion was and still is. No longer having to fear getting caught without our homework done, we can now see them as they really are; as the wise old souls who were always worried about how you were doing, always ready to counsel or advise. And so it is that we owe so much to those without whose skill and guidance we could not be here tonight.

As in any high school, all cannot be devoted to academic endeavours, although I can call to mind a certain French teacher who wishes it was to a greater extent. How well we will always recall those painful words "Alors, allez-y". A vital organ to the spirit of a school is always its extra-curricular activities. The Blue & White dances, the Sadie Hawkin's, the football games, the hockey games, the various clubs, all these things will always hold a tender spot in the hearts of those graduating tonight. An especially important function to this class in particular is of course that phenomenal, gala affair known as the Grade Thirteen Review. Here is something which we initiated and it seems that it may become an annual affair. In this production the lower grades are given an opportunity to watch the antics and jesting of the sophisticated grade thirteens while at the same time raising money for the United Appeal.

At this time I think that it is only fitting that I say how much we appreciated the work done on our behalf by the members of the Weston Board of Education. I think everyone here tonight will agree with me when I say that they do a marvellous job. As a former member of Weston's giants of the gridiron, I only wish I could convey to you just how soft that new sod felt. So, ladies and gentlemen of the Board, to you goes our gratitude for a job well done.

In closing may I express on behalf of the graduating class a very profound thank you which goes out to the staff, the Board, and most of all W.C.V.S. May we make you as proud of us, as we are to have studied under you.

NOTED GRAD BOB PULFORD

This year's noted graduate is a prominent member of the Toronto Maple Leaf Hockey Club -- Bob Pulford.

Born on March 31, 1936 at Newton Robinson, Ontario, Bob moved to Weston as a youngster. During his boyhood years he played hockey in Weston's minor hockey system.

While playing Junior A hockey for the Toronto Marlboros, Bob also attended Weston Collegiate and Vocational School. He entered Weston in 1951. Although busily engaged with the Marlies, Bob still managed to play junior and senior hockey and football for our school.

Some of his teachers are familiar to us also. He remembers such people as Mr. Heard, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Calnan, Mr. Scott, Miss Hanlon and Miss Wattie of our present staff and Miss Smith and Mr. Whiting from our former staff.

Among some of his fellow students were Mrs. Putnam and Mr. Weller, now teachers at Weston and Mr. Lee formerly of our mathematics and physical education departments.

After his graduation in 1956, Bob joined, directly from the Marlies, the parent Leaf organization, where he has shown himself to be one of the best players in the N.H.L.

Because hockey is not a life-time profession, Bob prepared for the future by attending college, where he majored in History and Economics. He earned his bachelor's degree through university extension courses and summer school.

As of now, Bob has not definitely decided what he will do when his hockey days are over, but he is considering being a high school teacher or obtaining his master's degree in Business Administration.

I know that whatever path he chooses to follow he will carry with him the best wishes from the staff and students of W.C.V.S. for continued success and good fortune.

UNITED APPEAL

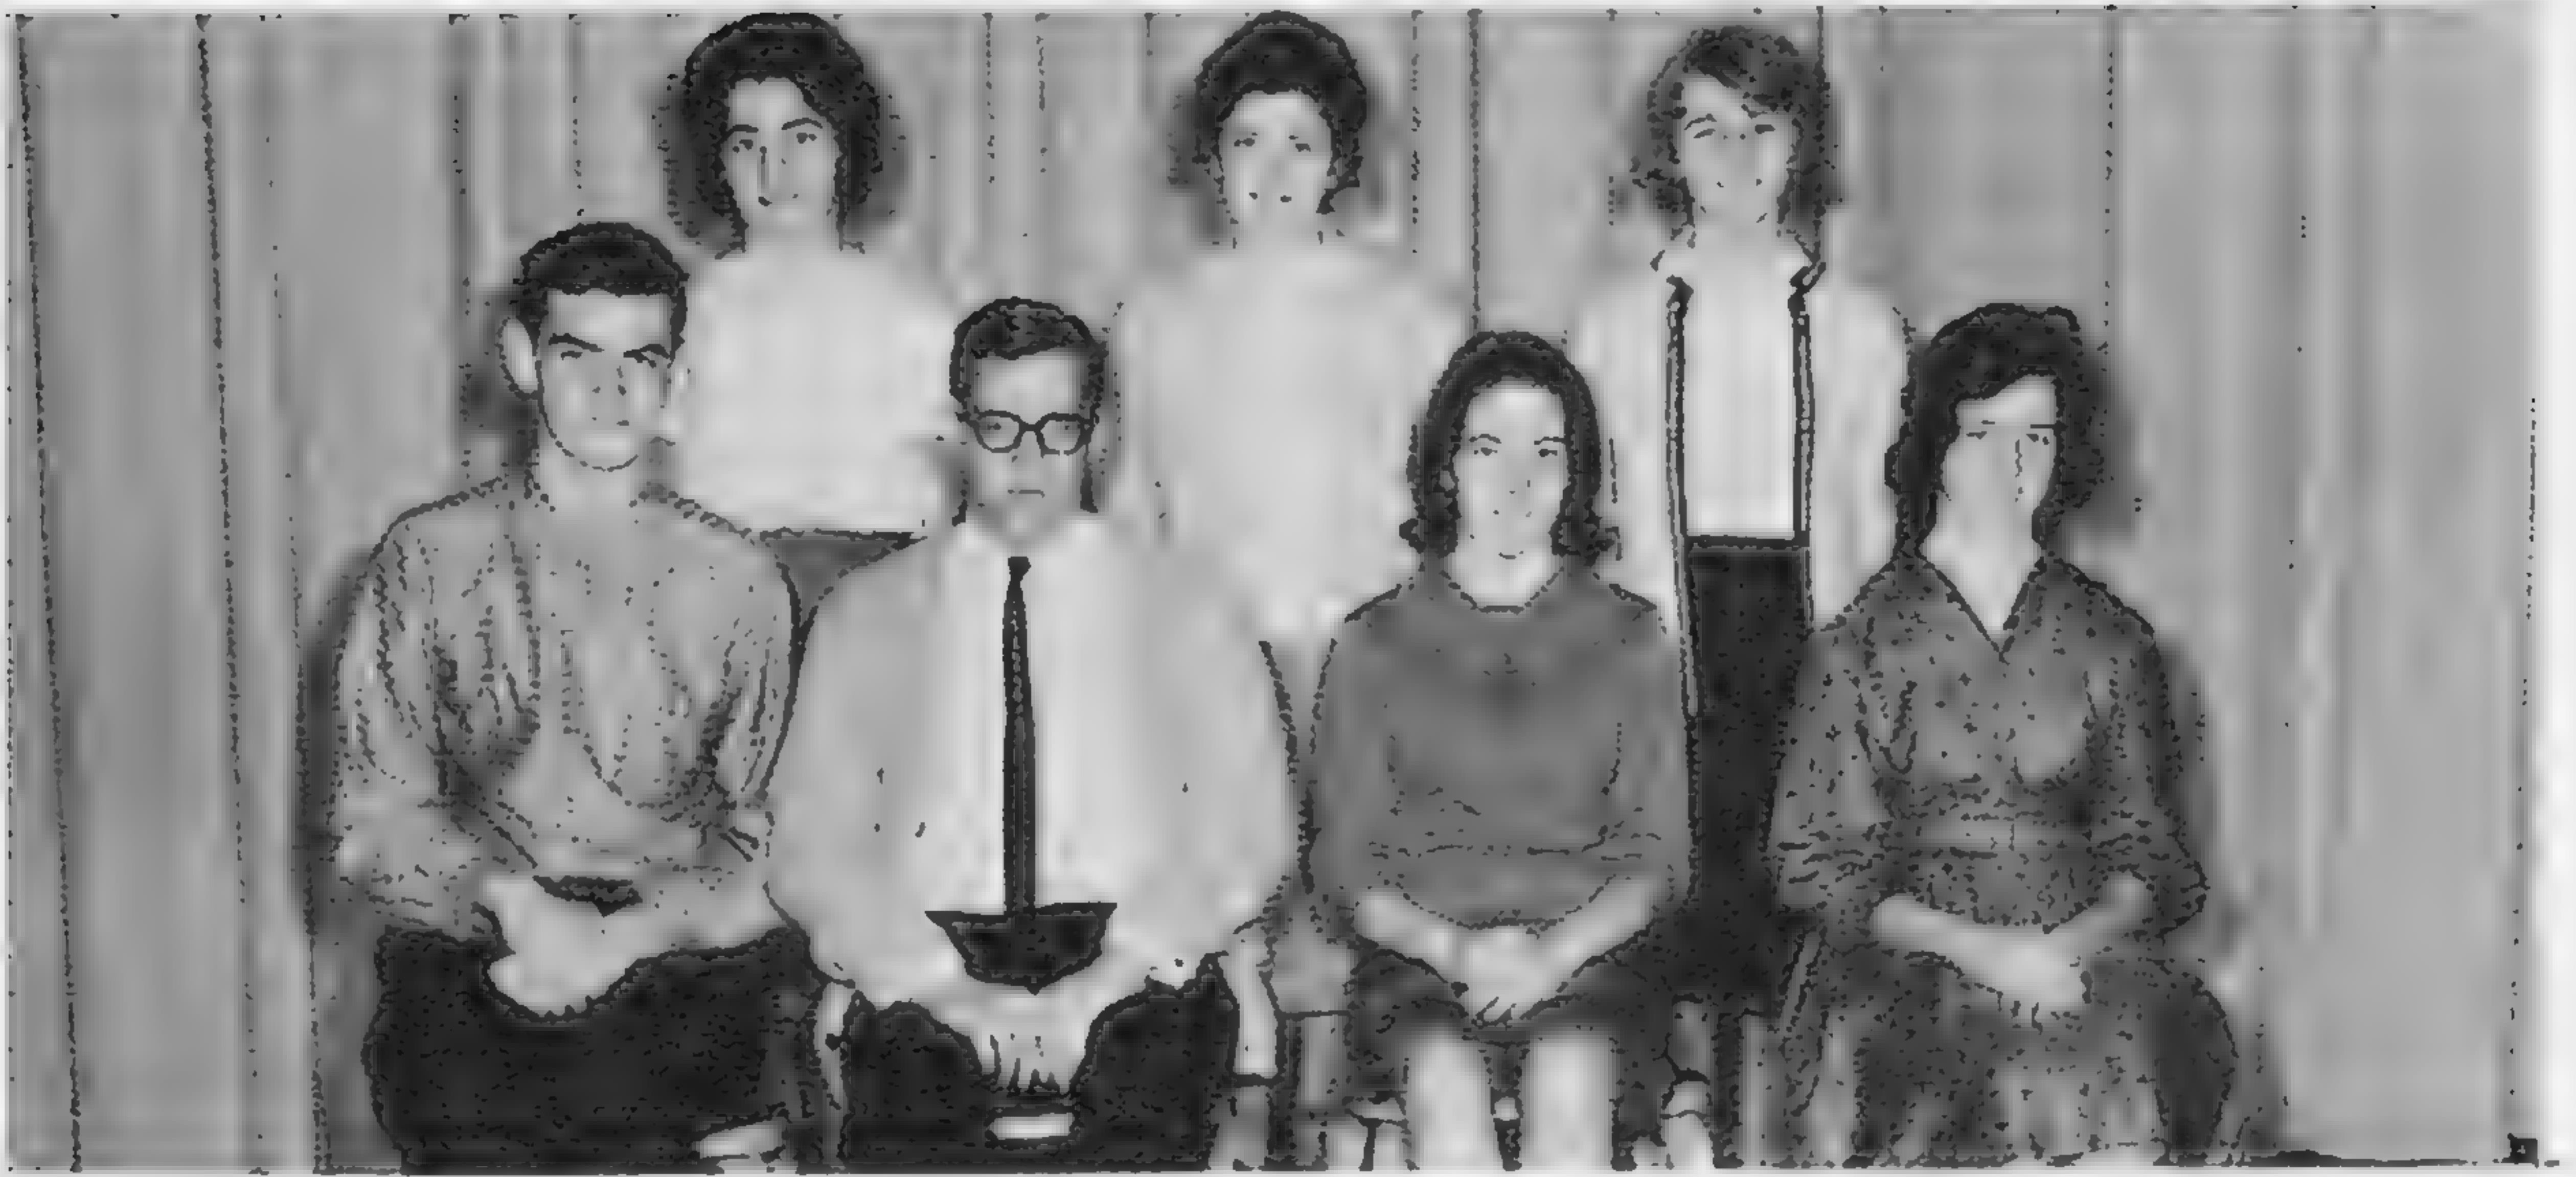

This year's United Appeal Drive at Weston was the most successful yet. We were able to raise $1925.00 which is a great increase over last year's total of $1200.00. The students raised the money in a variety of ways ranging from such novel projects as giving back rubs, charging teachers to park in the school parking lot, and collecting bottles; to the reliable money-makers such as selling candy, washing cars and shining shoes. The Grade 13's helped to put us well over the top with their annual revue which was very professionally done. A warm "Thank you" is extended to all who helped make this campaign a success.

FRIDAY FORUM

The Friday Forum was created last year with the purpose of discussing informally those things which aren't dwelt upon much in the school curriculum. The members meet every Friday in Room 108, at 3:30. We are sometimes honored by a guest speaker. Staff members also come to give opinions on the subject or provide members with important facts.

So what do we discuss? Almost anything. To give you an idea: Nazism, Current Affairs, Art and Music (of all kinds), Religion, and Evolution have been among past topics. Usually one person to whom the topic has special appeal, prepares the basic facts and presents the issues at stake. Informal discussion ensues, following no set pattern, but pertaining as far as possible to the topic. Depending on the subject, we try to reach some sort of conclusion at the end of the meeting so that all aspects have a chance of being brought up. Our meetings last over an hour. This year we have seen the Picasso exhibition at the Art Gallery, and hope to tour the University of Toronto Campus.

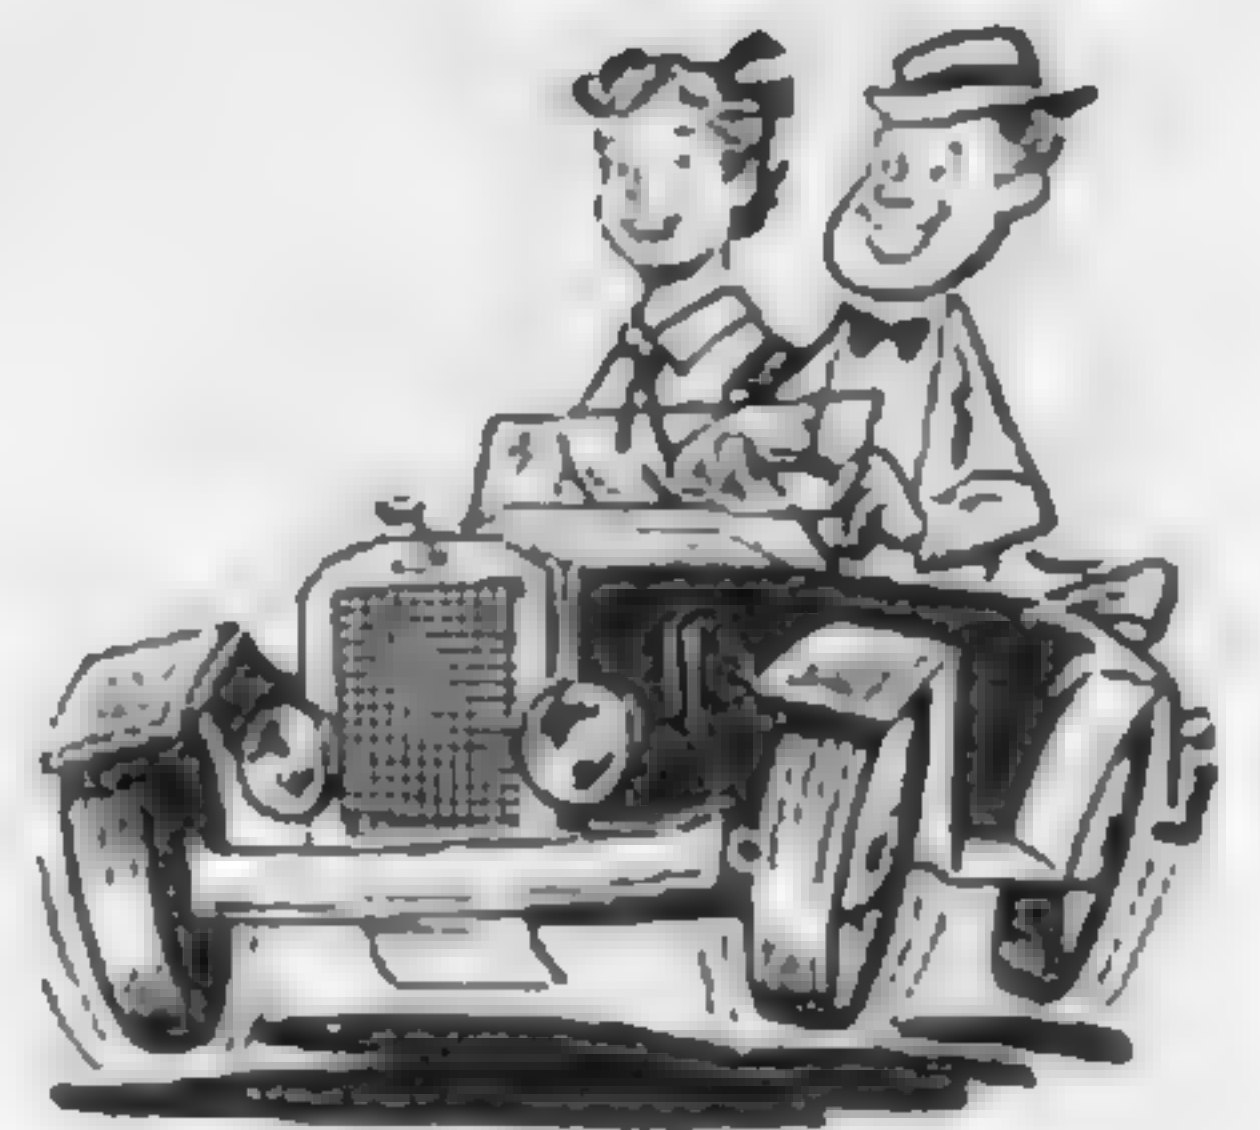

The accent today is on interdependence. We must now pool our thoughts as well as our resources. This gives us a sense of belonging to the future.

REMEMBRANCE DAY ADDRESS

The significance of Remembrance Day? I think of the significance in two ways: the significance to you as pupils of this school, and the significance to you who are about to be mature citizens in Canada and in the world.

Let us look first at the significance to you as pupils of Weston Collegiate and Vocational School. When I asked several pupils what remembrance day meant to them each answered quite glibly and almost without variation, "We are remembering the heroes of the two world wars." True, but to remember you have to have memories. You have no memories of either war, but I have, at least of World War II. I want, in the next few minutes to give you a few memories of this school.

I remember the months during the war when this school was in session for 23 hours of each 24--3 shifts: by day, teaching the day pupils, at night, training army and airforce personnel, and men and women for industry at Malton and De Havilland. I see the very tired, even grey faces of Bob Baxter, Jerry McLean, Mr. Worden or the secretary, Marie Stephens after they had worked from 7:30 in the morning to 11:30 at night. I remember when we said goodbye, one after another to teachers, some now back on the staff: Gord Russell went off to the navy, Ray Scott and Mel Thompson to the airforce. I remember the tremendous efforts put forward by the pupils to find the money to send parcels regularly to our long list of boys and girls overseas.

But those are happy memories of achievement and pride; there are many tragic memories too. In those days we held opening exercises in what is now the girls' gym--very much the type of opening exercise that you are used to--Bible reading, prayer and announcements. We very soon grew to dread the announcements, for too frequently Mr. Worden's words were "We regret to report" as the grim reports began to come in. Angus Cameron was missing. Tony Pengelly's plane has been shot down during a leaflet raid and Tony was a prisoner of war in Germany; Sergeant Pilot Donald Court was missing after a raid over France. Donald Beardall died in an airplane crash at Trenton. The first military funeral in Weston tolled the grimness home. There were two more such funerals in the next two years: Bruce Lawrence, star of football, rugby and track, and Wally Pidgeon, former President of the Student Council, member of a champion rugby team, and our Simpson Club representative. The toll went on to reach a peak in one dreadful week in November 1944--19 years ago this month. Eight times in that one week Mr. Worden, standing before us thin lipped, reported: William Beddow accidentally killed in Holland; Flight Officer Jack Hamblin killed; Flight Lieutenant Wesley Boddington reported missing; Flight Lieutenant Stuart May reported missing; Corporal McDooling seriously wounded; Lance Corporal William Johnson seriously wounded; Sergeant Richard Himphen dead of wounds; and Trooper Eric Jackson killed in action in Italy. That was only 1944. The tragic toll went on until the very last week of the war in Europe.

To answer the second. Each Remembrance Day is a day to rededicate yourself to accept the responsibility which living in a country whose freedom was maintained by those who fought in both world wars lays upon each and every one of us.

Remembering all those who have gone before, whose lives were devoted to the service of our country and all the benefits and privileges that we enjoy in this large land, let us all pledge ourselves to be worthy of our high citizenship, to be ready at all times to defend it and to live all our lives in such a way as to keep our country free and respected throughout the world. Only if we keep that pledge can we bear to listen to the voice which John McCrae gave to the fallen, in his lines.

To you from failing hand we throw
The torch: be yours to hold it high.
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders Fields.

We had begun to relax, to believe that with Germany's imminent defeat our casualties had ended. Then, only four days before Victory-in-Europe Day, came the news that Sergeant Edward Brundrit had been killed in the last hours of the fighting in the North German campaign.

There were, as well as the grim news, some happy reports--boys reported missing found safe. There was too exciting news, sometimes climaxed by tragedy, sometimes by escape. We heard from Tony Pengelly in the prison camp. We were shocked to hear that Douglas Fraser who lived where the nurses now have their home, had crashed after operations over Italy, then happy to hear that he had been rescued even if interned in Spain, then excited when we learned that he had escaped from Spain to Gibraltar. Only a few weeks after, news came that Doug was reported missing in a big raid over Duisberg. This time he did not come back.

Every one of the boys whose name will be read to you in a few minutes was not just a name on an honour roll, but as you who sit in front of me--someone who worked with us, sometimes came to us for help or advice, sometimes was exasperating, sometimes failed to answer a question or to do homework, sometimes brought honour to the school in dramatics, or sports or scholarship. For their memory I dedicate Laurence Binyon's lines to the Fallen:

They went with songs to the battle, they were young
Straight of limb, true of eye, steady and aglow.
They were staunch to the end against odds uncounted,
They fell with their faces to the foe:
They shall not grow old, as we that are left grow old;
Age shall not weary them, nor the years condemn.
At the going down of the sun and in the morning
We will remember them.

As you stand silent this morning and listen to the names read, and as you stand silent at eleven o'clock on Monday morning, think of the Canadians who worked at home for victory, of those who came home to pick up civilian life and go on being good citizens, and think especially of the boys from Weston Collegiate and Vocational School who lie in some quiet cemetery in England or Canada or the Netherlands or, on a silent ridge in France or a hilltop in Hong Kong.

But I said there was a second significance in this Remembrance Day. This service should be more than just a moment of remembering, more than just a few minutes to say--"No I have not forgotten," or "Yes I understand." If Remembrance Day is to have its full significance it should give us time to think of our answers to two questions: Was the sacrifice worthwhile? and Am I doing my part to pay for that sacrifice? To answer the first we think of our freedoms and contemplate what could have happened had men not been willing to fight for our way of life, our freedoms.

CHRISTMAS DANCE

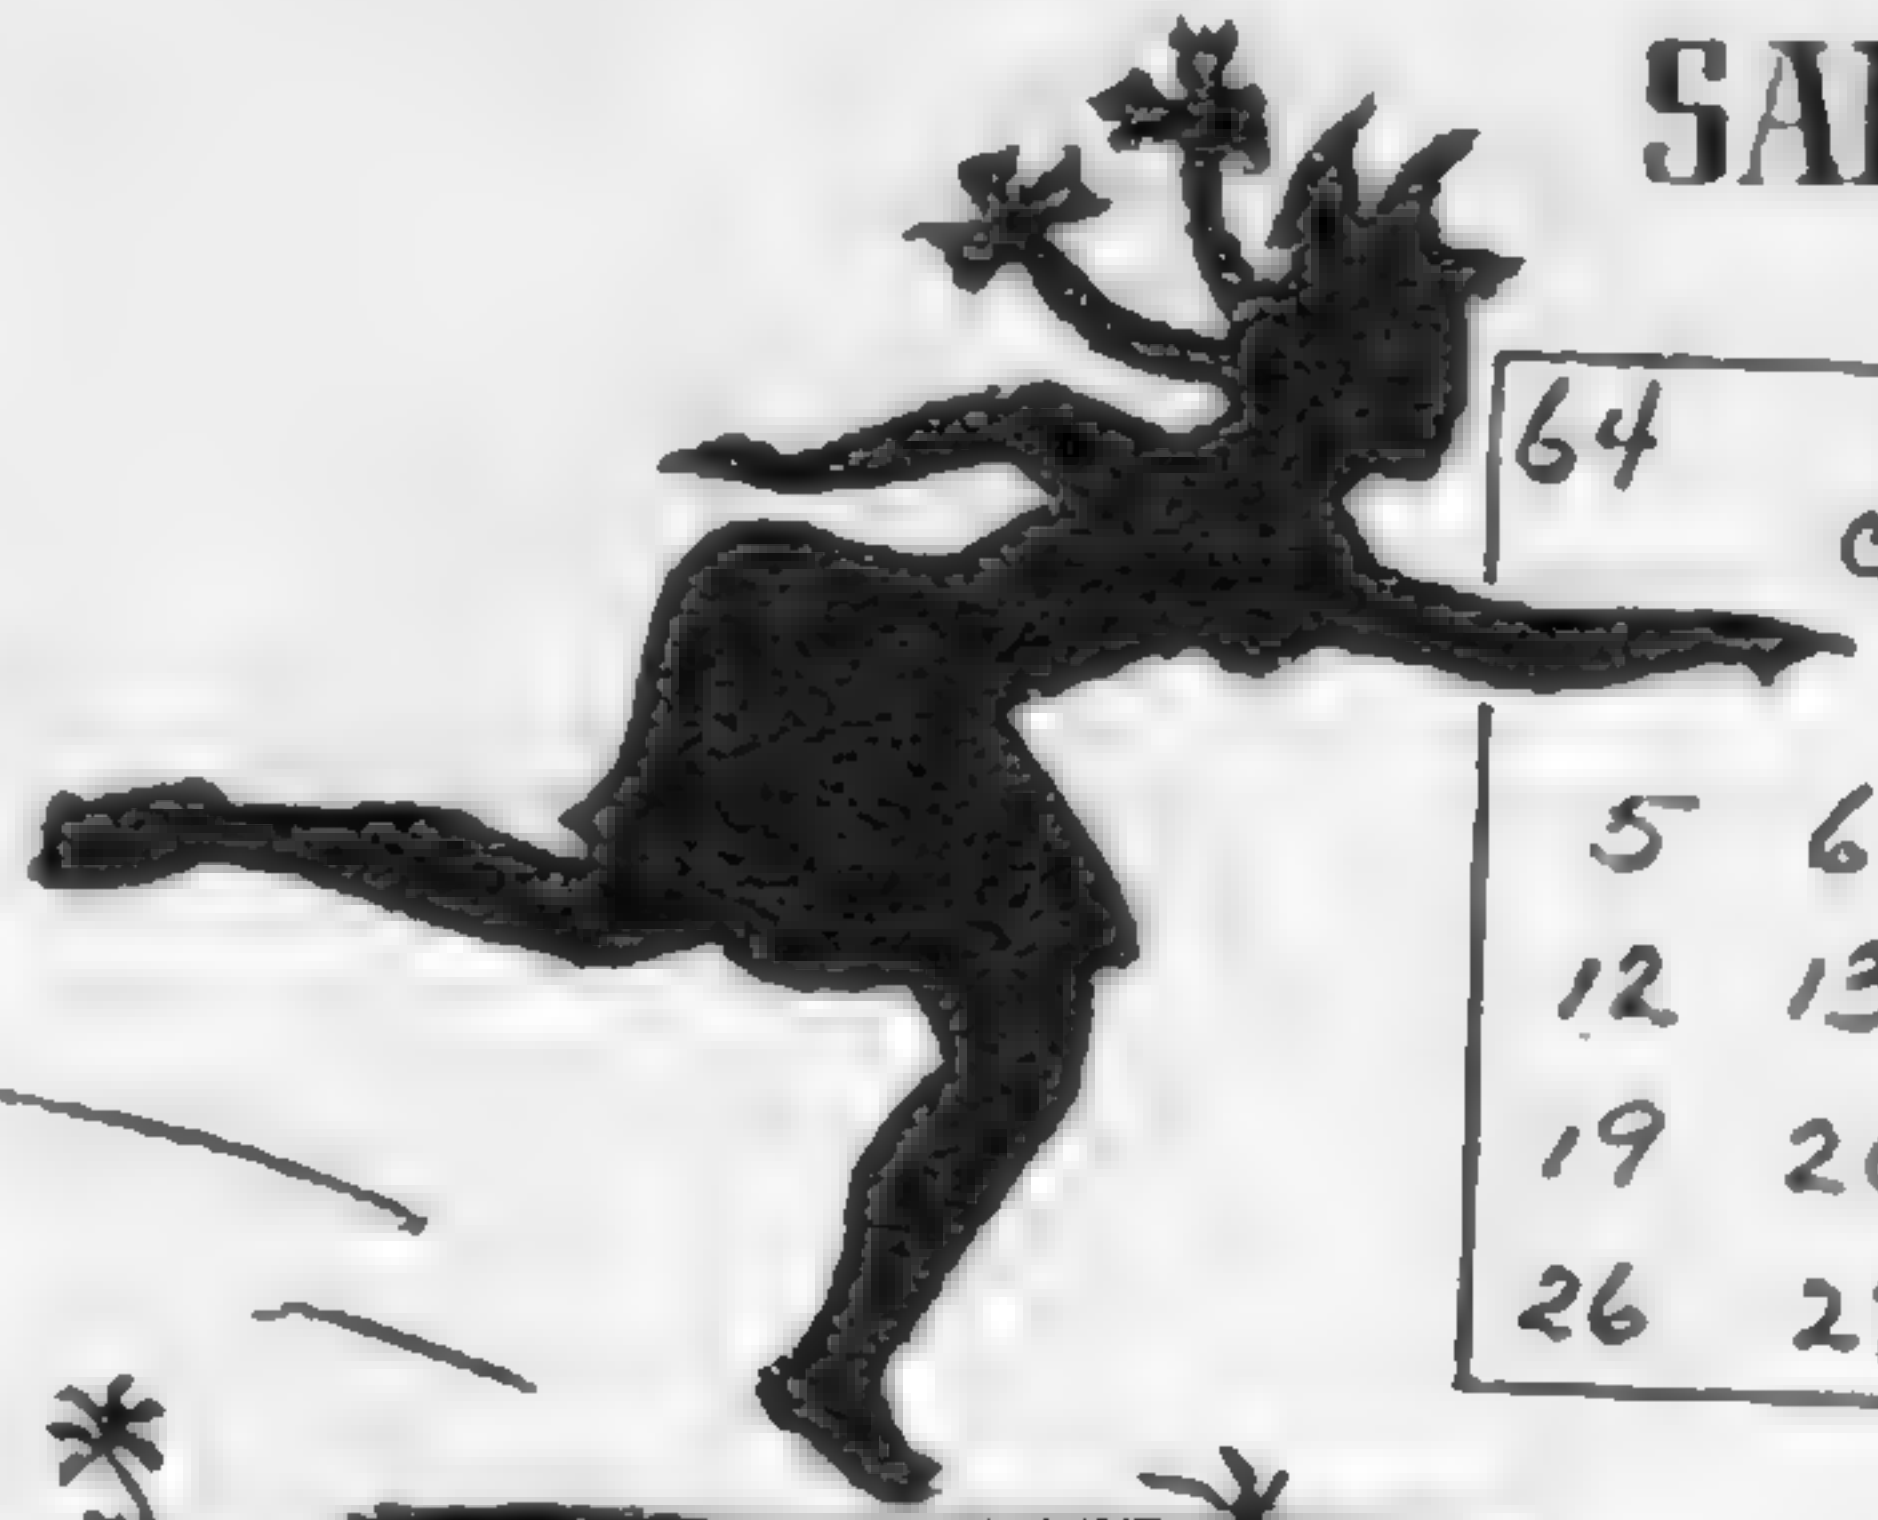

Once again the students of W.C.V.S. helped to capture the spirit of Christmas by playing Santa for about 30 needy families in the Weston Area. Each form collected food which was displayed in the foyer. On the last day before school ended for the Christmas holidays, the food was packed into gaily decorated baskets, and delivered by the students, members of the staff and Weston Lions Club who had provided turkeys and some other articles. Each child also received 2 or 3 brightly wrapped gifts donated by the students and repaired by C12. Gifts were also distributed among the children of the Thistle town Hospital and Weston Sanitorium.

Valentine Prom

On Friday February 14, Weston's annual prom was held at the Boulevard Club. The guests were received by Mr. and Mrs. Christie, members of the Board of Education, and our President John Henry. Dancing commenced at 9:00 P.M. to the music of Lorne Williams and his band. At 11:00 P.M. during the intermission our new Queen and Princess were crowned. The two lovely girls chosen by the students were Susie Quipp and Sharon Sprange, Queen and Princess respectively. The members of the court consisted of the runners-up. They were for Queen, Helen Mills and Marg Cotton, and for Princess, Marlene McGraw, Marilyn Norman and Louise Beattie. The evening ended at 12:30 A.M. and the couples departed having thoroughly enjoyed their evening.

Mr. Pardy: Webster, what does HNO_3 signify?"

John: Well, er--ah--I've got it right on the tip of my tongue.

Mr. Pardy: Well, you'd better spit it out. It's nitric acid.

Two drunks making their way home from a party were trudging down a railway track. Finally, one said, "Man, this is the longest flight of stairs I ever saw."

"That doesn't bother me", said his pal, "the thing that gets me is these low handrails."

Murray: How did you get the flat tire, Don?

Don: Punctured it when I ran over a bottle.

Murray: Couldn't you see it?

Don: No, Edith had it under her coat.

"Why do they keep elephants in cages?"

"Because they'd drown in an aquarium."

One very insulted skunk to another: "So do you."

Mr. Scott: Say, do you think you're running this class?

Wheeler: Oh, no, sir!

Mr. Scott: All right then, don't act like a fool.

What's in a name?

When a tramp knocked at the door of The George and Dragon Tavern, an acid-faced woman stuck out her head.

"Could you spare a sandwich," asked the tramp.

"No!" She slammed the door.

A few minutes later he knocked again.

"What is it now?" she asked.

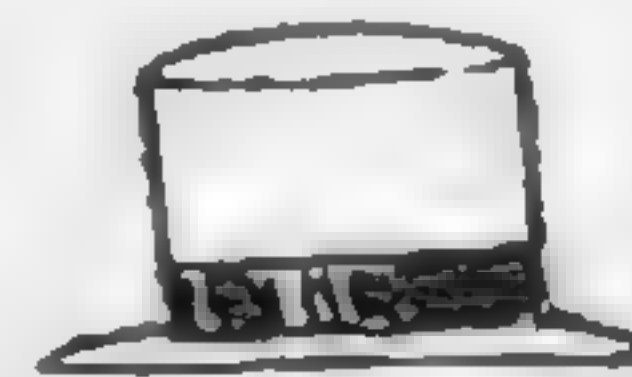

"Could I have a few words with George?"

A doctor was walking down the hall in a mental institution when he came upon two patients. He said to one patient, "What are you doing?" The patient replied, "Sweeping the floor." The doctor then turned to the second patient and inquired, "What are you doing on the ceiling?" The second patient replied, "I'm a light bulb." The doctor then said, "Get down from there and follow me." Thus the patient followed. The doctor then turned around to see that not only the second patient was following him, but both of them. The doctor then said to the first patient, "Where are you going?" The patient replied, "You don't expect me to sweep without a light, do you?"

Student: But I don't think I deserve an absolute zero.

Teacher: Neither do I but it is the lowest mark I am allowed to give you.

Mother rabbit to her small child: "A magician pulled you out of a hat! Now stop asking silly questions."

Sideshow

It was hot, with a wet, stinking, nauseous heat that sent sweat oozing through the greasepaint to rest in little pools on her upper lip. She moved slowly, drawing one monstrous fleshy arm across her face, and kept her eyes riveted on the crowd. They seemed endless now, these people; an undulating stream of eyes, noses, and hideous, gaping mouths. Their voices were hushed, filling the tent with embarrassed, guilty whispers, as they nudged each other and giggled while they stared.

She could feel her stomach turning as the rancid odor of a hundred sweating bodies mingled with the pungence of popcorn and onions that seeped in from the midway. In the relentless intensity of the heat, the crowd fused to a huge jellylike mass that oozed through the stifling airlessness of the tent.

The faint raucousness of the barker's voice was extolling the cheapness of the admission and the immensity of her proportions, and a tiny smile disturbed the thick folds of her face.

She could see the whole world from this cubicle; all the beautiful normal people, taunting her with their lean, loose-boned frames. On the brown canvas of the walls her mind drew sun-splashed pictures filled with geometric rows of red brick houses, with their green, postage-stamp lawns and square sightless windows.

Men, in the neat, conservative suits, came out of these houses and climbed into shiny, conventional cars while bathrobed housewives waved goodbye. They rolled smoothly along black and white highways to tall antiseptic buildings, which swallowed them whole, found them indigestible, and disgorged them at 5 o'clock.

Her smile was contemptuous now, and filled with pity for their normalcy. After all, what fool would pay good money, just to look at them?

Prize Winning Poetry

How Long ?

How long has it been
Since princes rode
In the silver mists of dawn
And the sun's rays shone
On that glory road
When the last of the dragons were gone?

How long to this time
When the missiles rise
Black and angry, against the sun
And the graves of two wars
That nobody won
Scream unheard in the roar of the bomb?

How long will it be
Until princes can ride
Once more through the mists of dawn
And the sun can shine
On that glory road
When the last of the dragons are gone?

The Fickle Wind

The wind, the wind, the ruthless wind,
That chills you to the bone.
The more it blows in savage gusts,
The more the treetops groan.

The wind, the wind, the relentless wind,
Blowing forever more,
Lashing against my window,
And beating against my door.

The wind, the wind, the cruel wind,
Taking life as it rages on,
Uprooting flowers, and trees, and shrubs,
Till everything is gone.

The wind, the wind, the eroding wind,
Tearing apart in its path.
Taking out anger on all mankind,
As it unfurls its violent wrath.

The wind, the wind, the gentle wind,
Blowing softly through my hair,
Taking away the violence,
And leaving the fresh pure air.

Frosty air,
Crisp snow,
Bright moon.
Zoom!

Laughing eyes,
Cold toes,
Runny nose,
Blows.

Sweet music,
Warm food,
Soft candlelight,
Goodnight.

Winter

"Sleighbells ring, are you listening?
In the lane, snow is glistening.
What a beautiful sight, we're happy tonight,
Walking in a winter wonderland."

These words from a popular song can make all the warmth and glow of the winter season come rushing back to us. Our memories tingle and our hearts swell as a wave of both nostalgia and anticipation surges through us.

We remember winter, the pleasantest time of the year. What a thrill is felt on that wonderful morning when winter first makes an appearance. The deathly, black outlines of stark, skeleton trees are softened with a gentle white blanket. The dead, brown ground is alive and sparkling with fiery diamonds.

Winter is a wonderful season. It looks like snowy trees glistening under soft street lights; like bright wool sweaters sliding down hills on shiny toboggans; like flashing blades on slippery ice; like small, rosy cheeks and gleaming eyes before a department store window on December twenty-fourth; like bright, blue water springing from an ice-covered brook beneath a group of dark firs with drooping boughs; like multi-coloured lights strung along avenues and gaily decorated houses; like fat, grinning snowmen; like smiling hosts greeting happy guests.

It sounds like muffled tires on white, city streets; like sweet Christmas carols; like cheers of encouragement or disgust at a hockey game; like clanging noisemakers at a New Year's party; like rustling paper as gifts are unwrapped; like the swish of a broom on a curling rink; like cheery greetings from friendly well-wishers.

It smells like wet mittens; like a crackling fire; like a fragrant pine tree; like spicy egg-nog or frothing hot chocolate; like enchanting perfume received on Christmas morn; like burning candles at a Midnight church service; like savoury turkey and all the trimmings.

This is winter: the very word seems to burst with colour, activity and life but when winter ebbs away, it takes with it the sparkle of white; the glow of red; the tang of blue; leaving a dark, muddy earth; gray skies and brown, bare outlines. We keep only memories of a merry, joy-filled season and dreams of a promising new year.

"Later on, we'll conspire,
As we sit by the fire,
To face unafraid, the plans that we made,
Walking in a winter wonderland."

A Day Spent Shopping

The Chauffeur opened the large, black door of the sleek, equally black limousine. An aging man in a grey homburg and navy blue coat stepped out. Placing his pearl-handled cane firmly on the sidewalk and twirling his grey moustache with a gloved hand, he approached the great glass doors directly in front of him. He grasped the large, bronze door handle and entered. He was ushered past the deep red Oriental rugs, by a well-dressed man in his mid-forties.

"Fine lines, hasn't it, sir?" asked the salesman, although he already knew the answer to his own satisfaction.

The customer coughed and muttered something the salesman didn't hear and it was probably just as well.

"As I was saying," continued the slightly perturbed proletarian, although he had not been speaking, "you'd, -- er -- you would," correcting himself in time -- he hoped, "like our," and here he added a saue French pronounciation, "deluxe model, with extra padding for your comfort."

"Well, yes, I think it would look best," replied the capitalist.

"How about a glass bubble over your head, so people can look in at you?"

"Do you think that would be in good taste?" queried the customer.

"Oh! Of course," came the cheerful reply. "Anything I can make a profit on is in good taste," the thought to himself. "Now, about colours . . ."

"I was thinking of black," interrupted the plutocrat.

"Oh no, sir, that's not done anymore!" exclaimed the man in horror. "We feel it's much too solemn. No, we suggest blood red. It's very appropriate."

"Yes, you have a point there. It's functional, as well as beautiful. Good! Well, now that that is settled, I will go -- but of course I will be back." He chuckled and the salesman politely laughed too. "I will send you my cheque in the morning."

At this, the man was ushered out of the funeral parlour, happy and contented. Now, at last, he could rest in peace.

The Woods

The woods by the road are quiet and deep.
The snow falls softly within,
It seems as if the woods be asleep,
Their mysteries yet to spin.

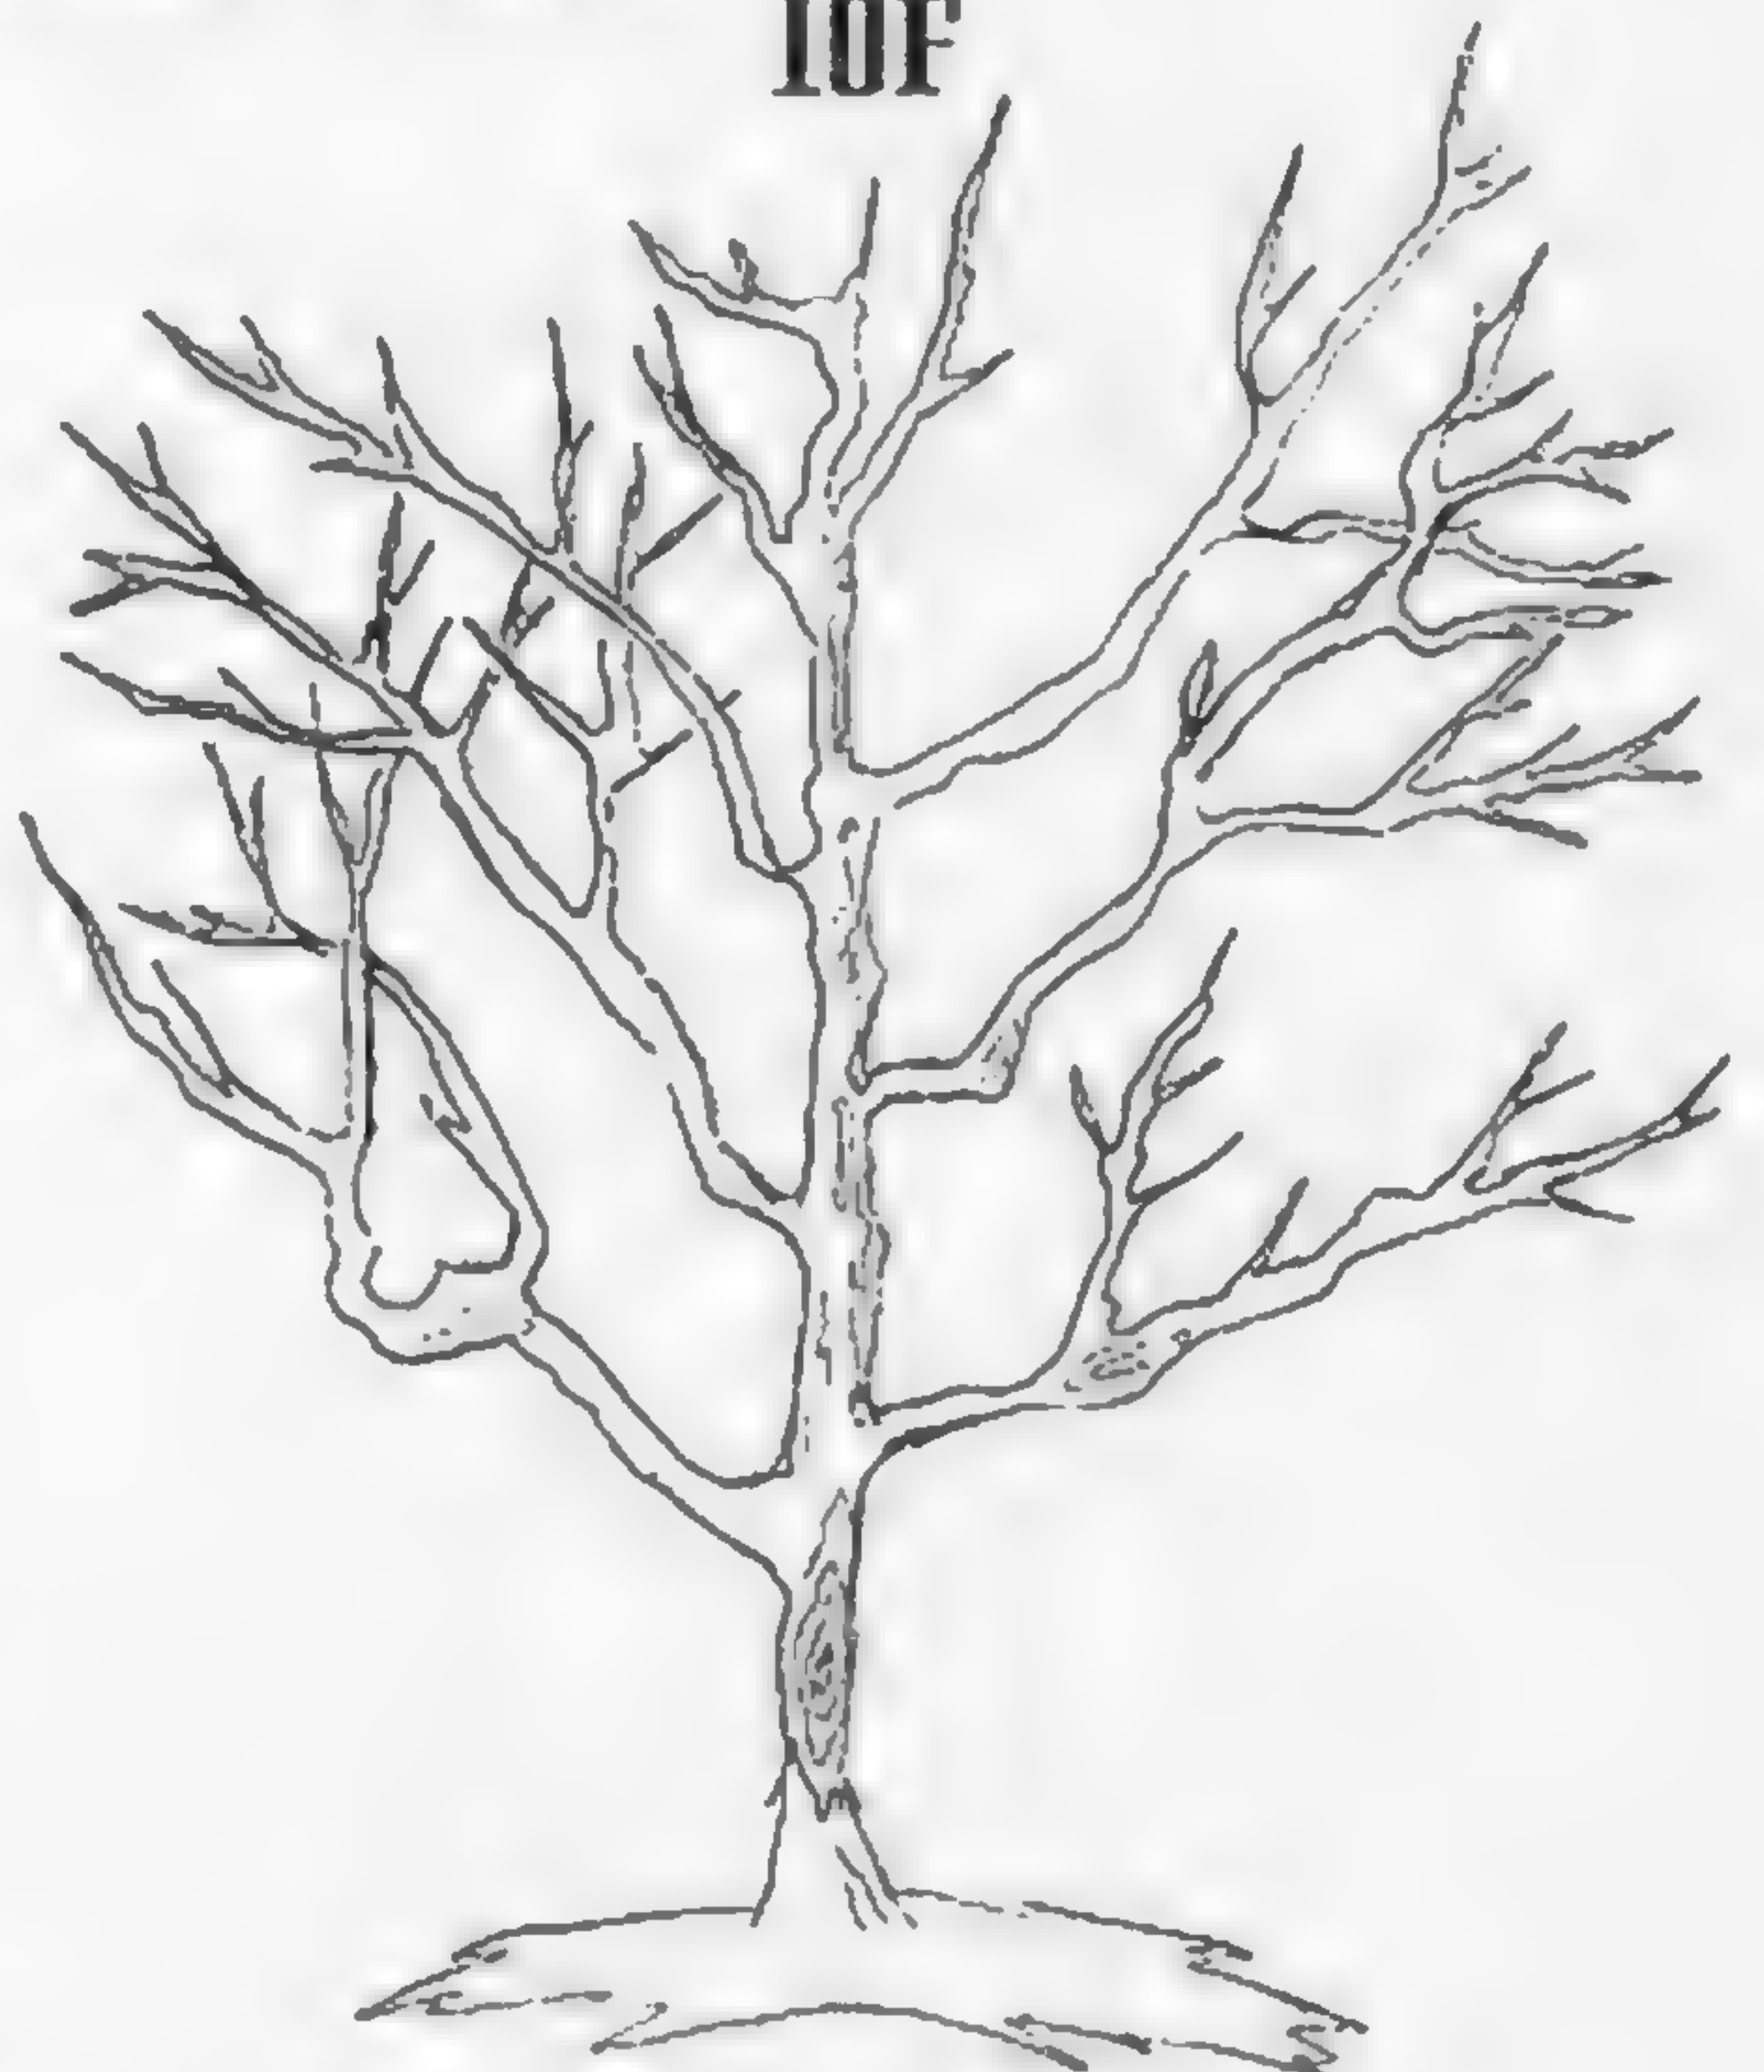

The trees stand barren in the dark.
Their branches raised on high.
The snow is clinging to the bark,
As it descends, swirling, from the sky.

Many tales are written of the woods,
Of phantoms and spectres bright.
Leaping about in cloaks and hoods.
On a dark and stormy night.

But tonight, the woods are quiet and deep,
And the air is sharp and thin.
It seems as if they be asleep.
Their mysteries yet to spin.

A View From A Bridge

There is quiet nobility about the river as it moves reluctantly between its banks into the depths beneath the bridge. It is cold here; the trees are stark and ominously black, and there is no warmth in the blue of the sky. The sun emerges, sometimes, behind that one persistent strip of grey, and the stream is for a moment spangled with silver, but the cloud soon imprisons its god, and it is again alone. A bird swoops low, touching in one fleeting moment of union, and then soaring ecstatically into oblivion. The river lives for that moment, but again it must endure its loneliness, mute and uncomplaining, sleeping, and dreaming of the sea. It is sure of the sea; sure of that warm friendliness that will envelop it in nerveless oblivion, until it sinks to the depths and begins at last, to forget.

O, the joy of forgetting! To choose its memories carefully, treasuring only the best, and burying the rest with a thousand souls, beneath the ocean floor; to forget the coldness, the spiteful, tearing anger of the wind, and remember only the brief moments of contact with life, of warmth from the sun, and quiet ethereal peacefulness of dreams: this is the river's joy.

It will be years, eons, perhaps, before the sea can claim it, but it knows that each cataract, each pond, each rapid and whirlpool is only a ripple on the face of time, and it has all eternity to be surrounded by the blissful anonymity of the sea.

My Existence and Theirs

My soul was weak, heavy-laden,
And all the world seemed dull.
My one time joys were sorrows then,
And happiness a hateful lull.
Their Friendliness reached out its hand
With the welcome words, "I'll hear thee!"
-- Folly from the popular stand --
Yet by forgot philosophy,
How often has this world escaped
The self-pitying narrow mess
Of materialists -- thin-draped
By "necessary selfishness"?
Rationalize life -- to make sure.
Then love people -- (Not to be poor!)

A Tribute

A man of love, a man of faith,
A man of good, a man of grace,
A man who fought to save a nation --
In a world of great temptation.

A man who spoke aloud with courage,
A man not easy to discourage,
A man who stood for equal rights
Among all people, blacks and whites.

A man who loved his family dear,
A family he was always near.
A man whose heart was filled with joy
When romping with his girl and boy.

A man whose life was quickly taken,
News by which the world was shaken.
Silent tears were shed that day
For the man known as J. F. K.

T12N

There was a chain, 'twas welded in the bonds of holy love,
With links of purest metal from the mines of heaven above;
The links were all united to form an endless chain
Around the family altar, there ever to remain.

The links were strongly welded to form this endless chain,
But one of them soon parted under rude and heavy strain;
Another link was broken, when a sister was no more,
For she passed beyond the River to Canaan's happy shore.

Another link was broken when a brother passed away,
To the realms of future glory, to remain to endless day;
Still another link was broken from this strongly welded chain,
When a brother died in sore distress, in agony and in pain.

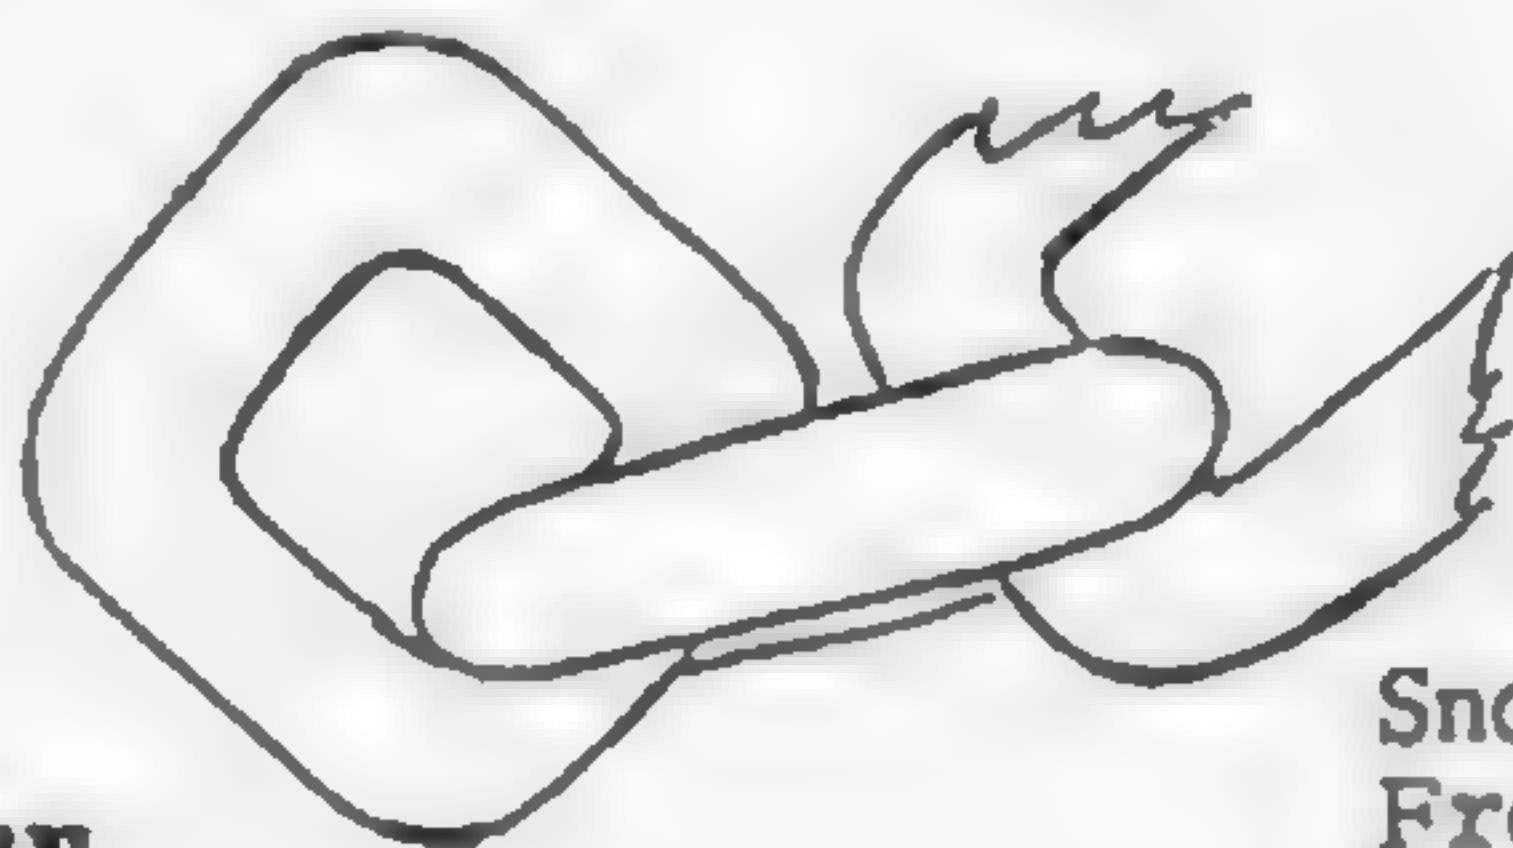

Another link has parted in this strong and heavy chain,
That has bound them close together in this world of grief and pain;
Five links have now been broken, but eight links still remain
To form the family circle of this closely welded chain.

Their tensile strength is waning in all succeeding years --
They all will soon be broken in this vale of woe and tears;
But another chain is forming around the throne above,
With the broken links united in a bond of heavenly love.

As each separate link is broken in this vale of woe and pain,
It is wafted gently upward to be welded there again;
As fast as they are parted with a sigh and with a groan,
They are all again united in a chain around the throne.

Soon these links will all be broken in this world of woe and pain,
But in heaven they'll be united to form an endless chain.
When linked around the altar they will join the glad refrain,
With songs of hallelujah, for their eternal gain!!

Youth
By
Margret Rueger
10F

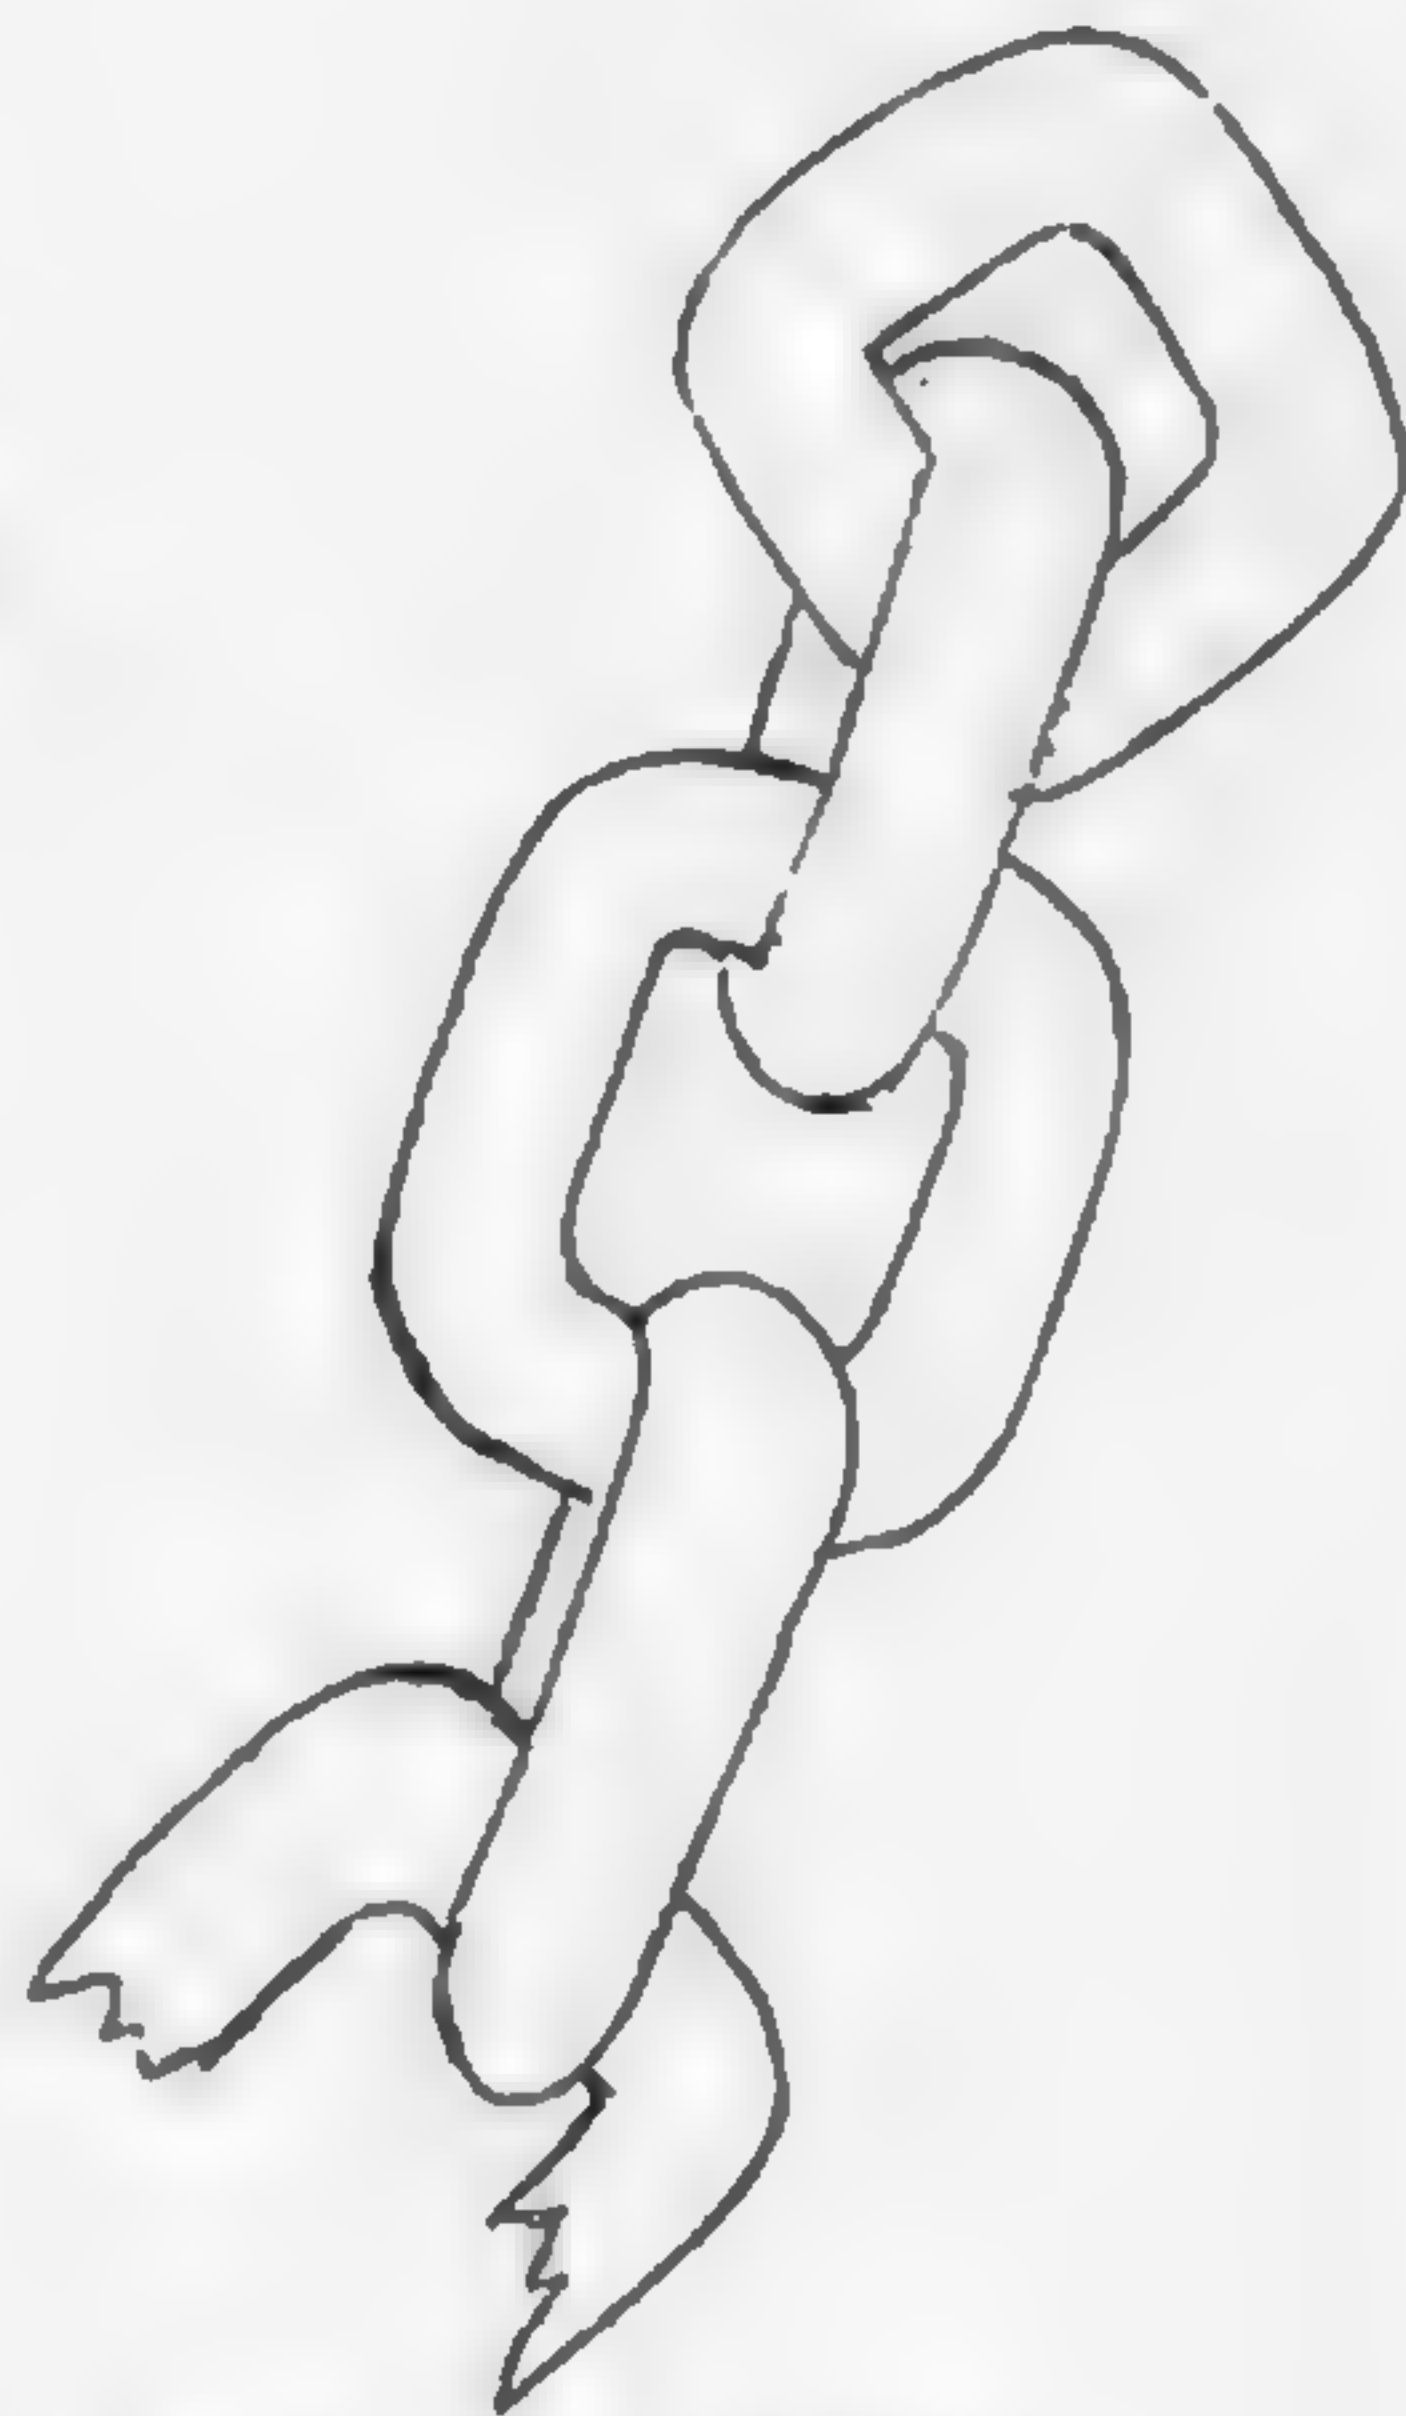

Only when you're young,
Can you see the morning sun;
Only when you're young,
Can you through the meadows run.

The eyes of youth will see each dawn,
That breaks before them in radiant hues;
And when the light of the sun is gone,
Young minds go on a dreamland cruise.

The ears of youth will hear each bird
Whose lilt rings through the emerald vale.
Young hearts will laugh at what they've heard
And then skip joyfully through the dale.

Fret not, if all your limbs are old;
You can not hide the truth.
If you are young at heart, it's told --
Once more you shall know youth.

Snowflakes
By
Kathryn Andrews
12B

Snowflakes gently falling,
From a silent sky,
Brushing past the bushes,
As they meander by.

Tired from their journey,
Seeking a place to rest.
Here, and there, and everywhere,
Finally on their Mother's breast.

Golden, dancing sunbeams,
Wispy, little winds,
Lift them gently upwards,
And drop them where one finds

Then, looking very charming,
In their suits of white,
Not a chance for resting,
Ever since their flight.

Dust at last has fallen
Suppressing all their play,
Forcing them to rest
Until another day.

Quebec

By

Rick Campbell

130

The question of Quebec is one which has disturbed us greatly in the last few years. It must first be remembered that the so-called Separatists comprise only a small portion of the population of Quebec.

In a recent poll, this minority was seen to be only about 10%. The problem is that these few people are tremendously active and vocal. I feel that a large number of these people are simply fanatics. They have seized the opportunity of embarrassing the government at a time when it is trying to unify the country. To understand these people, we must first find out what they are complaining about.

After the Seven Years' War, the French found themselves slowly being surrounded by Englishmen. But how could they preserve their way of life, their Church, their government when Britain moved into Canada? The way to do this, they discovered was to keep away from the British and to make their communities into ghettos to keep others out. Now today the youth of Quebec ask why they have no opportunities in English Canada. It is not because of prejudice. It is precisely for this reason they have stayed away from others. They have kept together, and now they discover that as a consequence they have been ignored. Is this our fault?

They talk of equality. But what do they mean? They have as much say in Parliament as anyone else. Their language is recognized as an official one. They say that a person who doesn't speak English can't get a good job in Quebec. Of course this is so, since their main relations in business and in other affairs is with the U.S.A., the U.K., and English-speaking Canada. Therefore, it is imperative that they know English. Recently a newly-formed party in Quebec stated that French should be the only official language in their province. It seems then that they want everyone to recognize French, throughout Canada, when only 20% of the people speak it, but they will not recognize English in Quebec, when 50% of the population speaks this language -- (langue).

I honestly feel that we are being fair to the French. We have had French Prime Ministers, a French Governor-General, and Mr. Diefenbaker even attempted to speak French to them. I think also that most of the vocal and sometimes not so vocal, fire is caused by fanatics. These people cannot see that only 20% of Canada's people are French and that there are also Italians, Germans, and those of many other races and languages to be considered. It is impossible to give the French 50% of the jobs and have everyone speak French under these conditions. But these people cannot be reasoned with. In speaking with ordinary French people, I would say they are sympathetic to our attempts. All we can do is to keep trying to improve matters and to hope that the fanatical minority will slowly fade away.

Proof

While passing two young lads one day
I heard the tall one speak.
"Prove the truth of what you say!"
The answer was so meek.

"You love your father don't you Jim,
But can you prove to me
That really, truly you love him?
Your proof I'd like to see."

Jim blushed and blurted out, "But Bill!"
"Your proof Jim," Bill went on.
His voice was growing stronger. "Well?"
His shyness now was gone.

Bill's face grew red, his eyes were bright,
At last Jim understood.
A sigh of relief. Bill's heart was light;
Jim saw now as he should.

The boys shook hands and went on; friends.
I stopped along my way.
"He's right," I thought. "So many things
We cannot prove, but say."

I cannot prove there was a Man
Or that he died for me.
I cannot prove that his life ran
From manger to the tree.

What makes me tell, then of these things
I just read in a Book?
This is my proof. The power it brings
When this belief I took.

Who Walks Alone
By
Paulette Reid

"Why should I live?" the exiled asks,
"What have I to gain?"
"Should I live my life a breathing death? Alas,
I cannot bear its pain."

There is no man who speaks to me
No one will shake my hand.
As I walk the streets, mortals hide from me
Left so alone, a lonely man.

"Leper, leper" they scream at me
Staring with fixed glazed eyes,
My shrivelled hands and face; deformed body:
The burden of my life.

Oh, God help me destroy the pain,
The leprosy that leaves him behind
"Who Walks Alone."

My Brother's Ghost
By
Elaine Katz

Once upon a midnight clear,
A shriek was heard both far and near,
What was wrong? who could it be?
No answer gave the sighing tree.

The next dark night I heard the same --
A ghost stepped forth to take the blame --
Quickly I lit the nearby candle,
And under the ghost I saw a sandal.

The sandal was a faded blue --
Same colour as my mother's shoe!
And through the sheet appeared a hand,
Wearing mother's wedding band!

"Death!" was all that it did say,
And then it slowly turned away.
Suddenly, I pulled the sheet --
There to observe my brother, Pete!

On Loneliness
By
Greg MacDonald

Sight but nothing to see;
Light and then night -
Clearness to grayness to black.

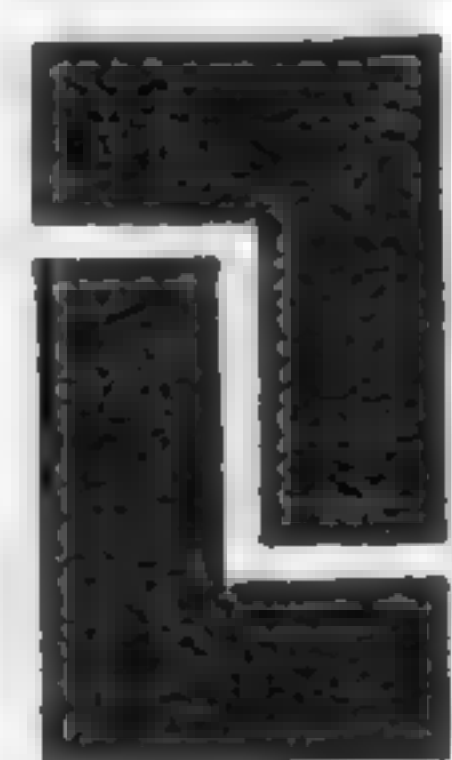

Ears but nothing to hear;
Voices and then no voices -
Sound to silence.

Friends and their faces,
Laughing eyes and warm smiles,
Friendly familiar places,
Bring a rapture that is pain -
Yet a pain which I seek
In vain.

Not to live, yet not to die;
Day and night I lie,
Alone.

Time passes,
And no trace of its passage remains.
Time stops,
And my world dissolves in flames
Of silence, stillness, isolation, searching,
Desperation.

Time passes,
And no trace of that passage remains.
Time stops,
And I lie burning in flames -
Of loneliness.

Commercial Department

There comes a time when man has to choose;
 With a commercial course, you just can't lose.
 There's typing and English, bookkeeping and machines.
 It's tougher and harder than they all think it seems.
 The teachers are swell, and rather nice.
 IF! you respect them, take their advice.
 Stick with commercial, even though you repeat
 Because sooner or later you'll have it complete.
 You'll work in an office, or maybe a bank
 And while making a living you'll know who to thank!
 The Commercial Department, who else could it be?
 You will not regret it, don't you agree?
 And when I graduate, you'll hear sighs,
 For the girls in Commercial out-number the guys!!

The C12 Subpoena

Earlier this year the C12's and CSP were privileged to go on a school trip to the Supreme Court of Toronto at City Hall. Rumours say that they had a very enjoyable time. They were only able to witness one case but it gave them the main idea of the procedure involved. Everyone seemed to enjoy themselves immensely.

MACHINE SHOP

This shop is a very useful related shop to Electronics, Drafting and Motor Mechanics.

It is equipped with the most expensive machines of all the shops and it is here that the students are taught how to use and respect machines worth thousands of dollars.

SHEET METAL

Training in air conditioning and heating is acquired in this shop, with the help of the demonstration furnace. The students make duct work similar to that found in actual homes. Two years ago the shop had an addition of a spot welder, which unites metal electrically, saving time and money.

Technical

Here at Weston Collegiate & Vocational School, a technical training course is offered to the many boys, who feel that learning a trade would benefit them more than taking a complete academic course.

WOODWORK

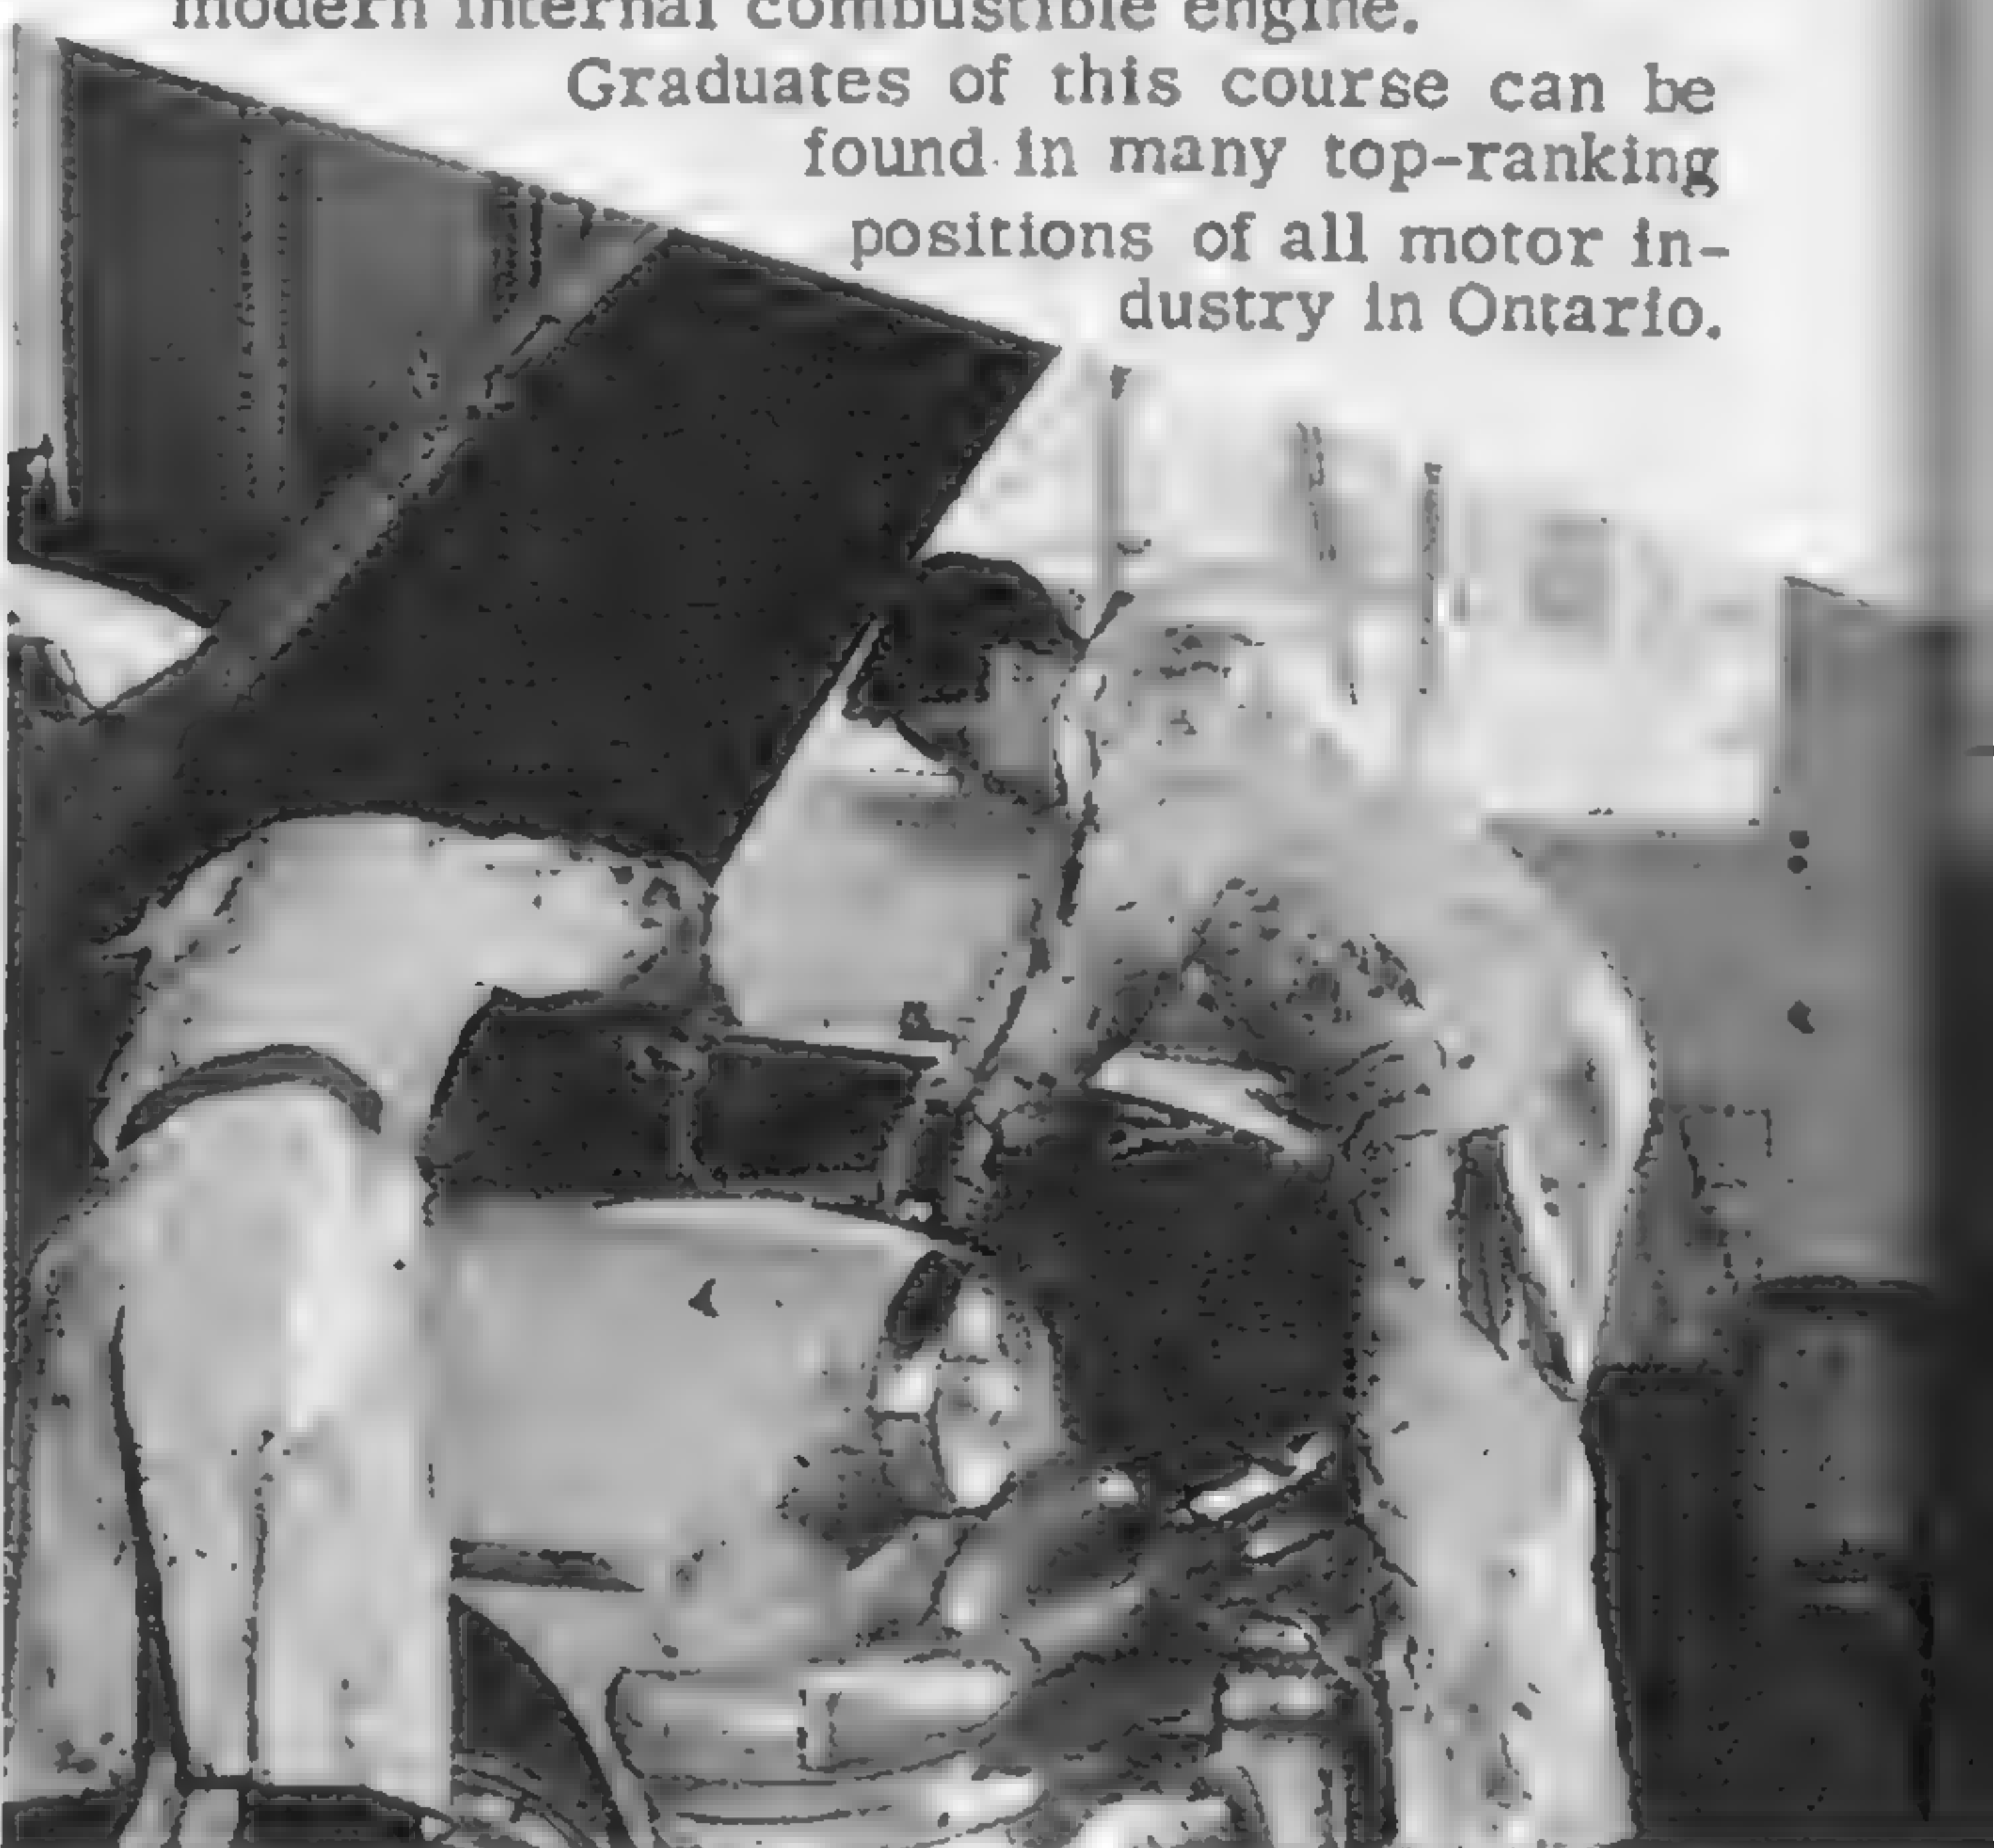

The wood shop at W.C.V.S. offers one of the most interesting courses of all the shops. It is well equipped with machines, that cut, grind, sand and shape wood. Each student has his own bench tools. Here in this shop the students use these tools constantly in the construction of their projects.

MOTOR MECHANICS

In this shop we have facilities to analyze the modern automobile engine completely. It is better equipped than most commercial garages. This shop educates the student in the function, construction and operation of the modern internal combustible engine.

Graduates of this course can be found in many top-ranking positions of all motor industry in Ontario.

ELECTRICAL

In this shop the student learns basic electricity and magnetics in order to fully understand electrical theory. The shop has a frame wood structure for practice wiring and some new generators for demonstration.

Graduates of this shop may go on to further education or take an apprenticeship.

ELECTRONICS

The electronic course at W.C.V.S. prepares a person for a job in the electronics field.

The shop is well equipped with many measuring and observing instruments. Students quickly build their own circuits for experiment in peg board kits.

The whole electronics course is designed to prepare the student for a job.

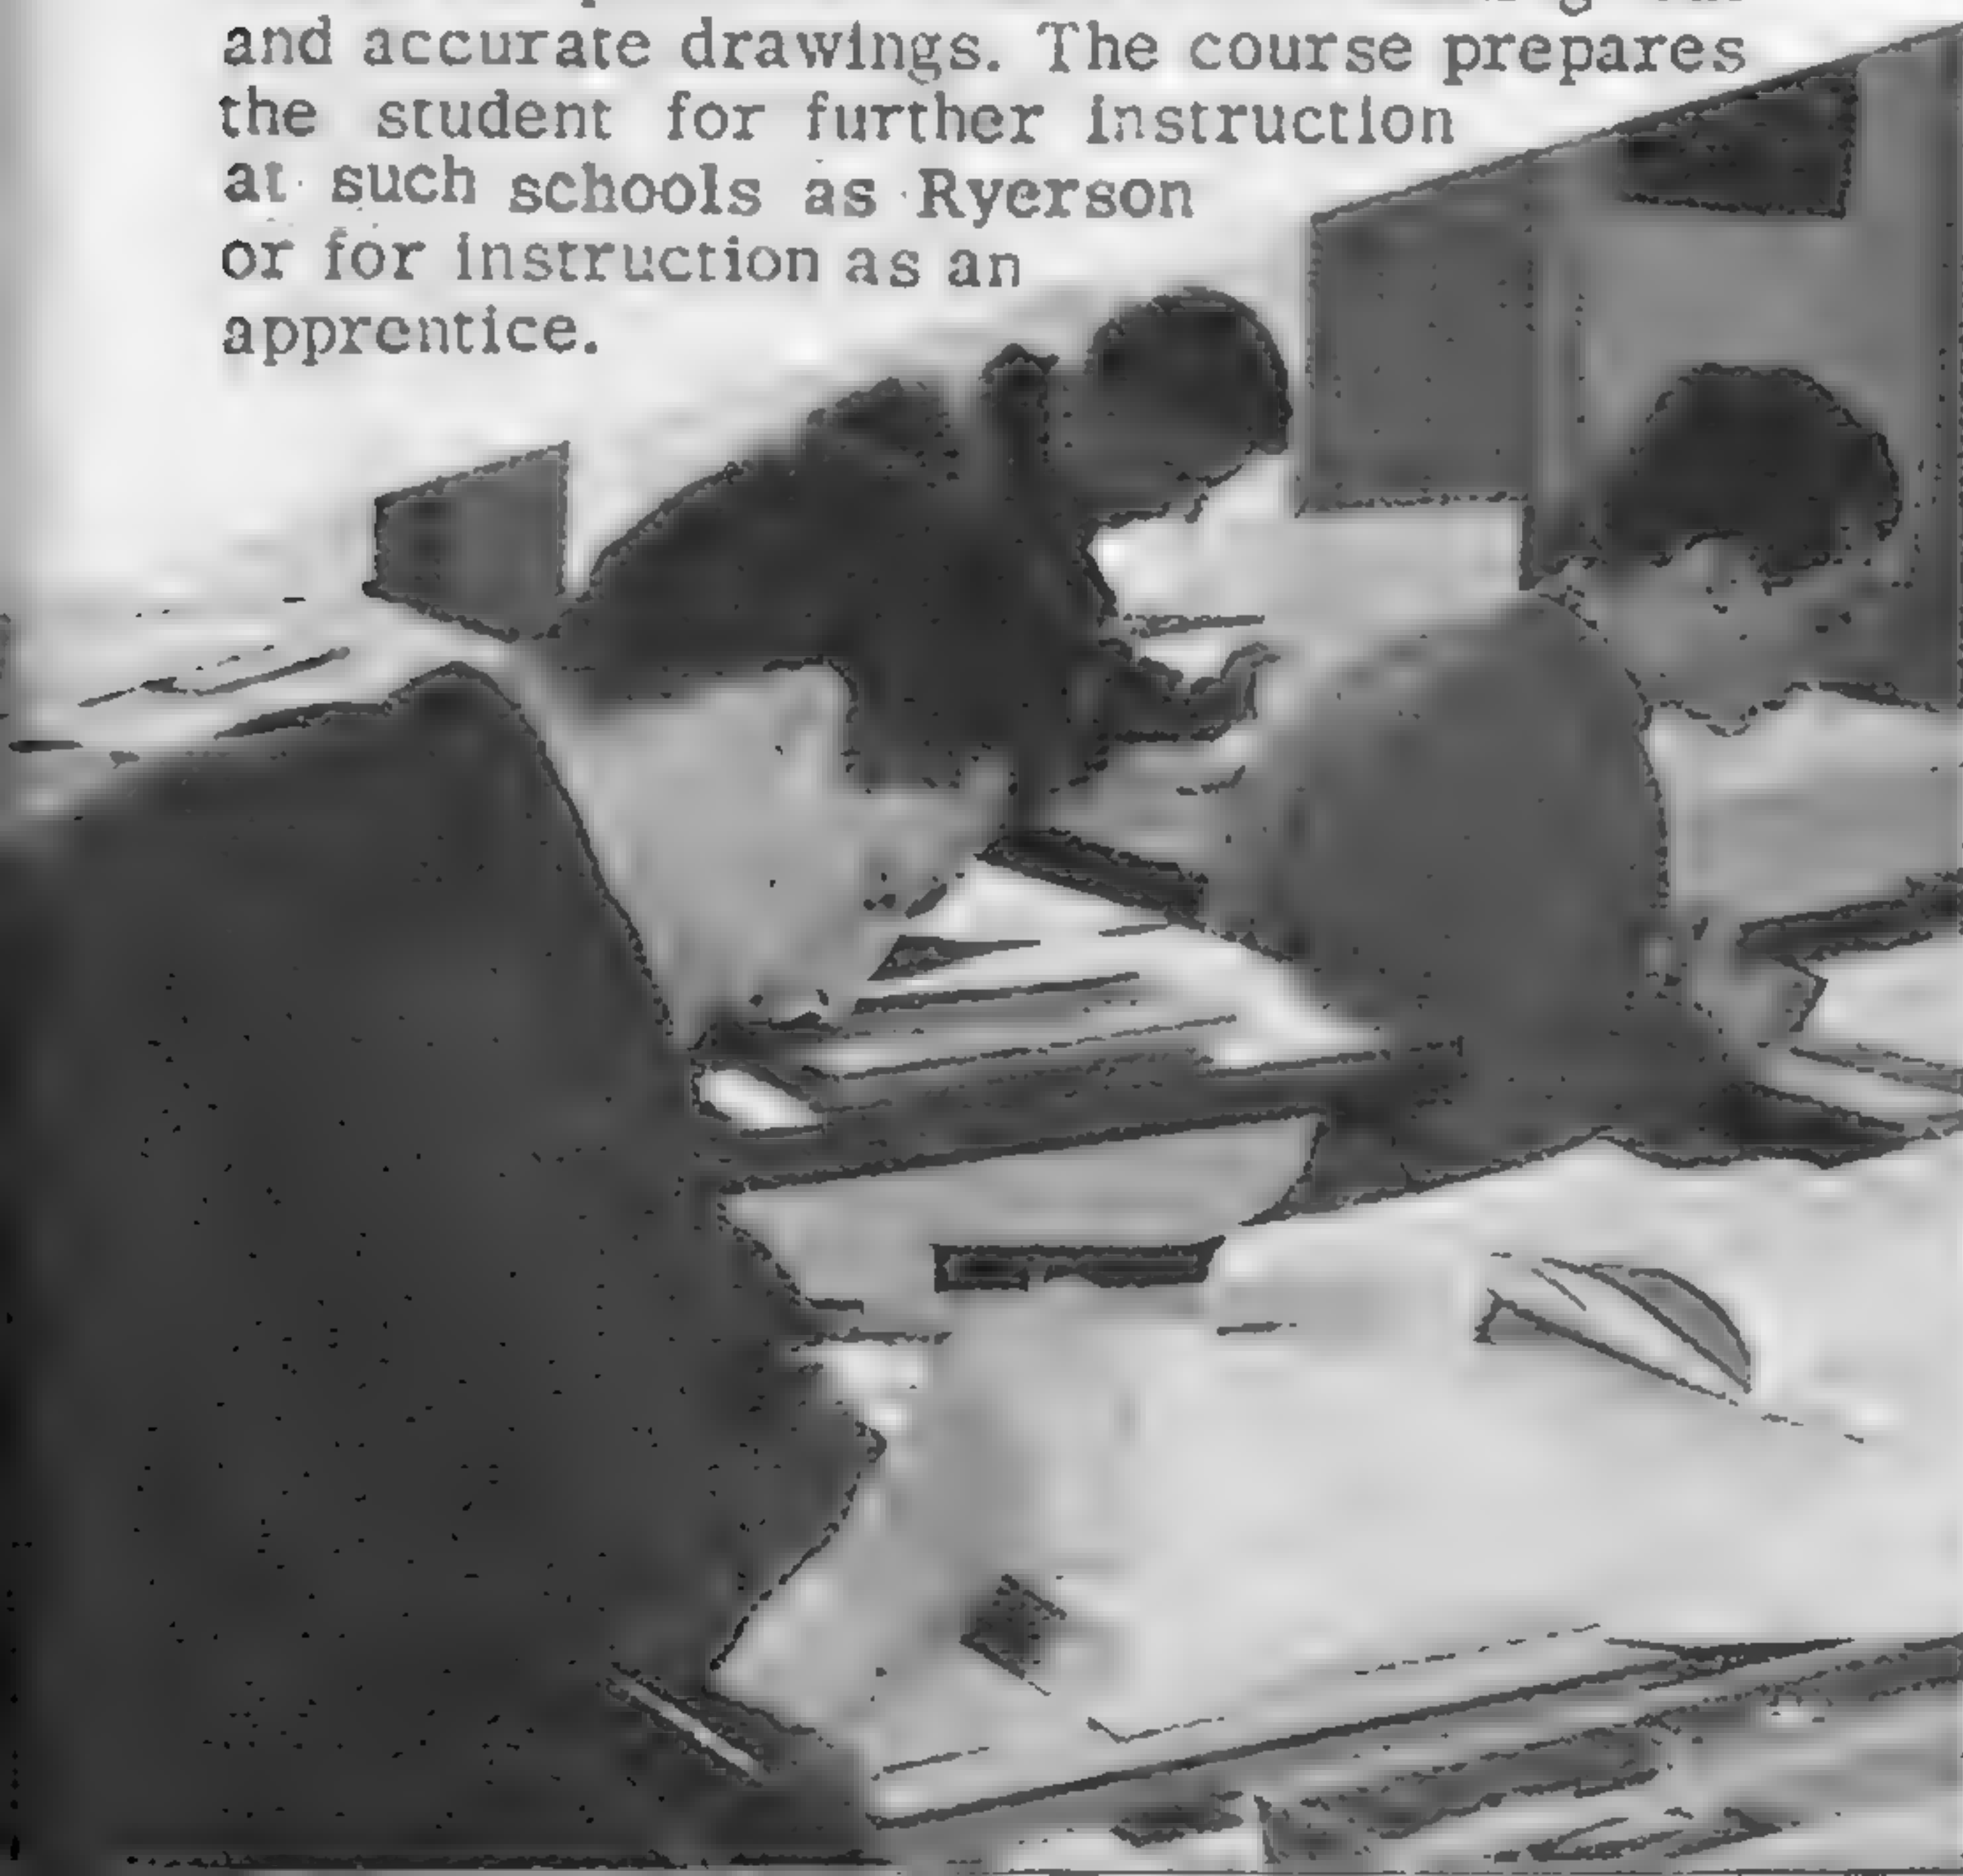

Department

Junior students (Grade 9 & 10) take all of the shops shown below and upon successful completion of Grade 10, select either electronic, drafting, construction or motor mechanics, to specialize in.

DRAFTING

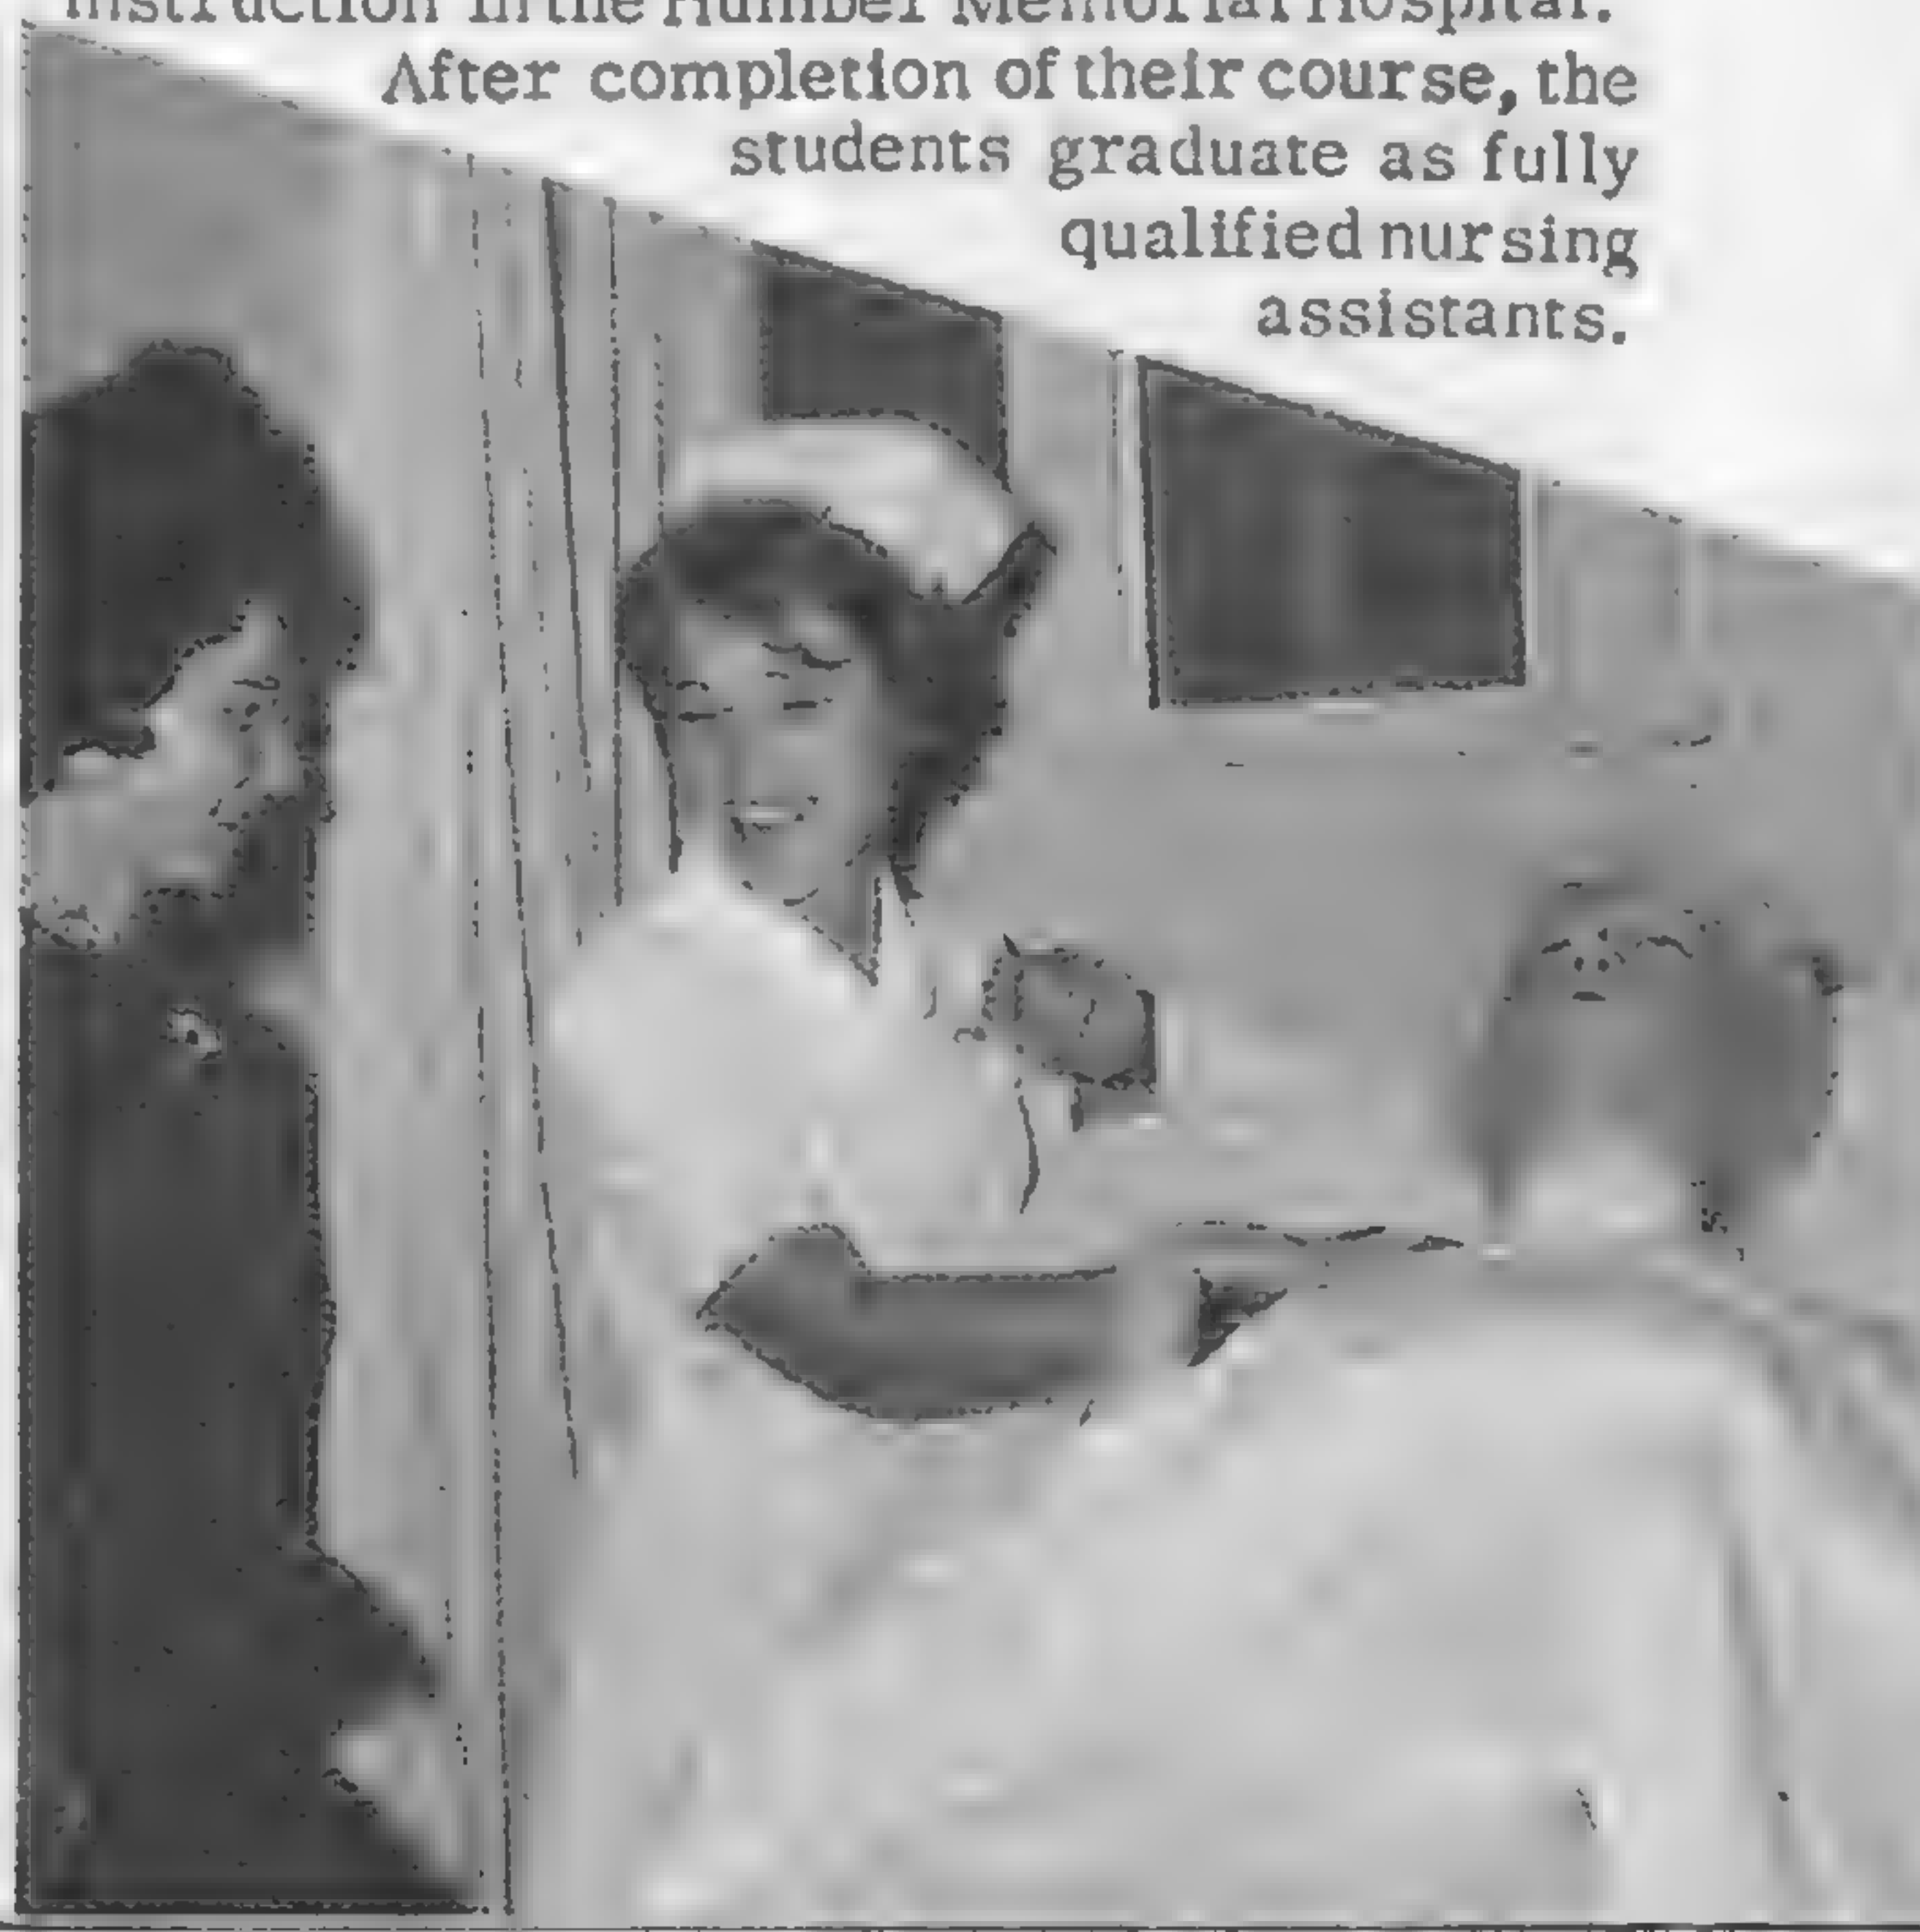

The general drafting course offers theoretical and practical instruction in making neat and accurate drawings. The course prepares the student for further instruction at such schools as Ryerson or for instruction as an apprentice.

NURSING

This course was adopted in the school three years ago. During this time it has proved itself to be of great benefit for all students concerned. This course includes classroom instruction here in the school and practical instruction in the Humber Memorial Hospital.

After completion of their course, the students graduate as fully qualified nursing assistants.

G.A.A.

The Girls' Athletic Association (G.A.A.) has five executive members: Pres. Lynn Meikle, Mary Jane Wagner, Trudy Miller, Sharon Arnot, Pat Boulton.

The girls at W.C.V.S. have a chance to participate in various sports such as basketball, volleyball, tennis, badminton, trampoline, archery, tumbling, etc.

Athletic points are awarded to girls who take part in these sports and one of the main functions of the G.A.A. is to total up these points. When a girl has 200 points, she receives a Junior letter "W", for 300 points an intermediate letter and for 400 points a Senior letter. Few girls ever receive their senior letter but those who do have contributed to girls sports at Weston and should be congratulated.

Inter-school sports have proved to be successful in the past few years and one of the ambitions of the G.A.A. is to build up student support for our girls' teams. Therefore, students, accept this invitation to witness some exciting games and to cheer our girls on to victory.

ONTARIO ATHLETIC LEADERSHIP CAMP

In July 1963, I had the privilege of representing W.C.V.S. at the Ontario Athletic Leadership Camp on Lake Couchiching. The main purpose of this camp is to develop leadership qualities and teaching abilities through the medium of athletics.

Each day at O.A.L.C. began when the rising bell rang at 7:15. By 8:00, 96 girls (there were 192 in the whole camp--each from a different Ontario school) all in blue gym suits were seated in the dining hall. The first class began at 9:00. The hour long classes were in Volleyball, Basketball, Gymnastics, Swimming, and two more classes of our own choice. The camp's 17 1/2 acres have excellent facilities and equipment for all of these activities. We did most of the teaching in these classes ourselves. Then the other campers gave a critical evaluation of the methods used. Three hours of our day were devoted to "Leader Planning Programme." At this time, we discussed such items as planning an Athletic Night, setting up a tournament, or planning how to run a Girls' Athletic Association. The last class ended at 9:30 p.m. "Lights out" was at 10:30.

Perhaps most valuable to me at O.A.L.C. was my experience in teaching and leadership. When I left camp, I was healthier than I had ever been before (or since), I had many new friends, and I had a better appreciation of the value of Athletics. I shall always remember my enjoyable and valuable two weeks at the Ontario Athletic Leadership Camp.

Pat Boulton, 12B.
